'TOKEN' PAYMENT ON BRITISH DEBT ACCEPTED BY U. S.

$7,500,000 Offer Taken by Washington Under Same Understanding as That Reached on June Installment.

"HOLIDAY" IS SEEN ON NEGOTIATIONS

Further Discussions of International Problem To Await Clarification of Money Situation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—An end to international debt negotiations until the world monetary situation has clarified was signaled today at the conclusion of the discussions between the United States and Great Britain.

In the windup of the conference, the British tendered a token payment of $7,500,000 on the installment due December 15.

The announcement of the completion of the British talks was made simultaneously in Washington and London by the president and Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the British exchequer.

President Roosevelt said the conversations "have made clear the great difficulty, if not impossibility, of reaching sound conclusions upon the amounts of international payments practicable over any considerable period of time in the face of the unprecedented state of world economic and financial conditions."

Adjourn Sessions.

"It has, therefore, been concluded to adjourn the discussions until certain factors in the world situation—commercial and monetary—become more clarified."

The president added that Britain continued to acknowledge the debt and that he did not regard the British in making a token payment, as in default.

In making the announcement to the house of commons, Chamberlain said his government was ready to resume negotiations "on the general question whenever after consultation with the president it may appear that this can usefully be done."

Morehouse College Sued for Alienation

The wife of A. C. Curtright, member of Morehouse College and Atlanta University faculties, filed suit Tuesday against Morehouse College, S. H. Archer, president of Morehouse College, and Dr. John Hope, president of Atlanta University, asking damages aggregating $50,000 for alienation of affection, and damage to her health. She charged that Archer, Hope and the college have, after gaining her confidence as to marital difficulties, maliciously induced Curtright to file suit for divorce in order that he might pursue studies in Europe and obtain a permanent position on the faculties of the two colored schools.

The petition was filed by Attorneys John H. Geer and Benjamin J. Davis Jr.

Thief Begins Sentence 15 Minutes After Crime

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Henry Smith, 26, stole a coat from a clothing store. Less than 15 minutes later he was behind the bars serving a 30-day sentence.

Court attaches said the capture, charging, arraignment, guilty plea and sentence came close to setting an all-time 'speedy justice' record.

PRESIDENT GREETED MAXIM LITVINOFF AT WHITE HOUSE

Roosevelt and Russian Envoy Expected To Proceed With Recognition Talk Today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight received Maxim Litvinoff, the first official emissary of Russia to visit the White House in the 16 years of the soviet government.

The soviet commissar of foreign affairs, responding to Mr. Roosevelt's invitation to discuss relations between the two nations, arrived at the White House at 6:30 p. m.

He was escorted from the residence of Boris Skvinsky, chief of the soviet information bureau, by James C. Dunn, chief of state department's protocol division, and Colonel E. M. Watson, the president's military aide. Preceded and flanked by motorcycle policemen, the party drove through a light rain to the White House portico, where Litvinoff was greeted by Captain Walter Vernon, the naval aide.

Military Staff.

In the reception hall in the White House six of the White House military staff stood at attention. They bowed in unison to Litvinoff, turned a right-about face and preceded him to the green room.

Just a few moments later Secretary Hull arrived and joining Litvinoff conducted him to the blue room for the presentation to Mr. Roosevelt.

Litvinoff left the White House at 6:10 p. m. after a visit of 20 minutes with President Roosevelt.

The soviet envoy smiled broadly as he left.

Mr. Roosevelt received Litvinoff in the blue room and their exchange of conversation in the presence of other guests was purely informal as well as brief. The quickly extended hand of Secretary Hull as smiling Maxim Litvinoff left his special train at the Union station today symbolized the approaching conferences which may mean speedy recognition by this country of the soviet state.

In Russia the sixteenth anniversary of the bolshevik revolution was being celebrated and the day marked the first time that an official welcome had been extended by the United States to the state which grew out of the upheaval.

In New York, Litvinoff, whose credentials as a representative of the soviet were refused by this country 16 years ago, was welcomed by James C. Dunn, chief of protocol of the state department.

Litvinoff, when he landed, was accorded the honors ordinarily reserved for the envoy of a country already recognized. His reception at the Union station was a continuation of that formal welcome.

POWER CO. SEEKS TO USE TESTIMONY OF FORMER PROBE

Effort To Stand on Old Record Vigorously Opposed by Goree; 30 Financial Exhibits Asked.

An effort by the Georgia Power Company to stand on the record of the hearings which resulted in the setting of its present rates met strenuous objection Tuesday as the Georgia public service commission opened a general investigation of domestic and commercial rates.

The power company in its formal answer to the commission's rule nisi ordering the company to show cause why the rates should not be cut and all extra charges eliminated, told the commission that its returns were already inadequate and that a further cut would be confiscatory.

When R. B. Troutman, of the company's counsel, had finished reading the formal answer, Walter Colquitt, another of the company counsel, asked leave to introduce the transcript of last spring's testimony.

The question was passed for the moment while John T. Goree, assistant attorney-general who is assisting the commission in rate inquiries, asked Mr. Colquitt what witnesses he had ready to support the present rate structure.

Mr. Colquitt told him there were no witnesses—that the company could not afford to call the old witnesses. Goree objected to the introduction of the testimony in the previous case, holding the commission "it he could not consent to testimony by witnesses whom he had had no opportunity to cross-examine."

Jack C. Savage, assistant Atlanta city attorney, joined in that objection and added another objection that the record would include "the findings of another commission which he has no bearing or connection with this case."

Jud P. Wilhoit, chairman of the commission, told the attorneys that the present case was a new one, which must be decided on the basis of facts as developed now. He asked Goree to call witnesses to the stand against the present program.

"Now the NRA laborers in Georgia are attacking the old record with leave to call the witnesses quoted in it, for cross-examination."

"No serious attempt was made at the time to cross-examine the witnesses and bring out the true background of their testimony."

When the grand circus came to a close, Goree said it was ballyhoo and treated it as such.

"We can't allow a staged record of that sort to appear as the record of this hearing."

Asks for 30 Exhibits.

Goree renewed his objection and told power company counsel he wanted 30 exhibits prepared, going into all phases of operating costs, revenues, contracts with subsidiaries and affiliates, and the value of property.

Then he proposed to the commission that a recess be taken until 9 a. m. today to allow him and the other attorneys to examine the record of the old case and determine whether they would insist on their objection to its introduction.

He told Colquitt he wanted the men who prepared the various exhibits to be present when they were introduced, for cross-examination.

Later in the day Goree said he had decided to "insist that this is a new case, which must make its own record and be decided on its own merits with no reference to what any witness said some months ago, or what any commission decided then."

"We don't know whether conditions have changed since then, nor whether the witnesses would say the same thing now," he said, "or we might be able to bring out some new aspect of the figures by questioning."

Commissioners declined to forecast their action on Goree's objection but one member of the body considered this "a brand new case."

Increased Expenses Cited.

In its lengthy answer to the commission's rule nisi, the Georgia Power Company through its president, Preston S. Arkwright, asserted that the transfer of the 3 per cent federal utility tax from the consumer to the company as of September 1 has cost the company about $750,000 a year. This tax formerly was paid by the customers.

The company fixed its present valuation at $173,096,980 but stated it is "of considerably larger value."

Mr. Arkwright's reply stated that the fixed physical properties of the company were worth not less than $152,133,000 and that it has a going concern value of $15,213,980 and is now working capital, material and supplies worth $5,750,000.

Chiselers Threatened With NRA 'Big Stick'

Johnson Appeals to Midwest Farmers To Desert Petty Leaders and Rally Behind Roosevelt Recovery Program.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Flinging another verbal barb at Henry Ford, General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, tonight turned from his speech deploring midwest farm strikes to threaten, if necessary, to club "chiselers and gougers under the recovery act" with the administration's big stick.

Addressing a throng in the city auditorium in a second address of the first day of his swing through the farm discontent area, the NRA chief counseled "patience and support, and the NRA laborers in Georgia are attacking the old record with leave to call the witnesses quoted in it, for cross-examination."

"No serious attempt was made at the time to cross-examine the witnesses and bring out the true background of their testimony."

FUSIONIST BEATS TAMMANY CHOICE AND JOSEPH M'KEE

Tiger's Power Is Broken In Nation's Largest City for First Time Since Mitchell Victory in '14.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Tammany Hall tonight to defeat tonight before the sweeping onslaught of Fiorello H. LaGuardia, independent republican, who ran for mayor on the fusion ticket.

The voters tossed aside Joseph V. McKee, independent democrat on the recovery ticket, who was backed by Postmaster-General James A. Farley, and Mayor John P. O'Brien, the Tammany candidate.

LaGuardia fought to the last ditch for his victory, personally throwing a Tammany worker out of a voting place and cruising the city with his wife—his former secretary—to fight against illegal voting.

Here Is Vote.

With only 242 precincts unreported the mayoral vote was:

O'Brien, 530,321.
LaGuardia, 585,551.
McKee, 604,045.

Into the city hall with the jubilant LaGuardia was swept fusion control of the board of estimate—the minority vote being bequeathed to Tammany and the Bronx organization of Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, by the electorates of Manhattan and the Bronx.

Swept aside by LaGuardia's slashing drive were McKee's plea that a vote for him was a vote for President Roosevelt and Mayor John P. O'Brien's call for party regularity and for his right to re-election on his record.

"The result in New York city," said Farley, "speaks for itself. The voters by their actions showed they are thoroughly dissatisfied with the present democratic leadership in the city of New York."

Walker Goes to Bed.

In France, dapper Jimmy Walker, who resigned as mayor during hearing on Samuel Seabury's charges of mismanaging the mayoral office—went to bed before the result was known.

New York things were different. Tammany Hall and Union Square were gloomy, but Broadway was brilliantly lit as millions through halled LaGuardia.

The results are indeed gratifying as opening the way to a new era in municipal government," said LaGuardia, as he arrived at his Times Square headquarters in the midst of cheering, pushing crowds.

As furniture was overturned, LaGuardia, his wife and Seabury edged their way into the office.

"I fully realize the responsibility I shall assume on January 1," LaGuardia shouted to the crowd. "I need and ask for the co-operation of all interested in good government. I promise, and I now pledge, a real non-partisan administration. I shall take no part in politics for the next four years."

Seabury, relentless Tammany inquisitor, basked in LaGuardia's success. His two years' drive to break Tammany's grip on the city government accomplished.

Seabury Is Happy.

"In view of Mayor-elect LaGuardia's knowledge of the city government, his experience, his courage and honesty," said Seabury, "I think that the cause of good government will not only be won in New York city but will be promoted in every city in the United States."

Tammany was the first to concede defeat. At 8:30 p. m., after LaGuardia had maintained from the first a commanding lead in three of the city's five boroughs, the historic hall, where only 300 persons in contrast to the usual thousands received returns, issued a simple statement admitting defeat.

An hour later McKee, whose headquarters were closely guarded, sent the following message to his successful opponent:

"Congratulations on your victory," McKee said. "The year in the city hall has been filled with municipal difficulties, heard the returns with John F. Curry and other 'Tammany stalwarts. Then he sat at a table and wrote the following statement:

"The people have made their choice for the government of our city for four years. I am wiring Mr. LaGuardia my felicitations upon his victory."

Restaurateur Regains Forfeited Blue Eagle

GARY, Ind., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Theodore Rahutis, the first person in the country to have his NRA Blue Eagle revoked for NRA violations, hung the emblem back in the window of his tavern today.

Habitat said 1,000 reservations had been cancelled in the month the Blue Eagle was missing.

Restitution was made after the local board checked Rahutis' books and was convinced there had been no recent violations.

KENTUCKY GUNS BRING DEATH TO 7 IN ELECTION ROWS

Violence Also Marks Activity at Ballot Boxes as New York Chooses Mayor.

By the Associated Press.

Seven men were killed and numbers wounded and beaten yesterday as six states voted on prohibition repeal and New York elected a mayor.

The seven dead all were in Kentucky but New York led with the number of fights and sluggings and disorder prevailed at many boxes and even led one of the candidates, Fiorello H. LaGuardia to go to a polling place and jerk a badge from a Tammany worker.

Three of Kentucky's dead were in the trouble center of Harlan county, long a scene of disorder at elections and during coal strikes. Z. B. Blanton, 46, John Blanton and A. H. Hensley, 51, were shot to death and three men were wounded in a general fight following an election dispute.

Hugh Childs, negro democrat, was shot to death in an argument with negroes at a Louisville polling place and another negro was killed by negroes in Middleboro, Ohio. Ramey, 22, was shot to death at a Carter City polling place.

At least seven persons were wounded in the state.

Fist fights, sluggings and other scattered violence marked New York's election and blacked squads on the lower east side worked with the precision of voting machines.

One official in the second assembly district reported police were unable to cope with the situation.

When an officer arrested an alleged repeater two machine loads of mobsters surrounded him and although he was beaten before other officers rescued him.

LaGuardia—whose forces claimed that the mobsters were the cause of the beating—rushed to a polling place when he heard a Tammany worker had gained admittance and tore the man's badge from his coat, shouting "get out of here, you thug."

The disorder ranged from the top to district ward heeled. Robert Minor, communist candidate for mayor, was tossed into the street from a voting place by thugs, and William M. Chabourne, LaGuardia manager, was arrested on charges of striking a man in the face.

LaGuardia, arriving here by plane, said to an election district to answer alarms of intimidation and demanded the arrest of election officials.

Order disorders were reported in Ohio.

Cuban Student Denies Wiping Hands on Flag

MIAMI, Nov. 7.—(AP)—J. A. Rubio Padilla, Cuban student, today said he wanted the friendship of the United States and denied reports that he had wiped his hands on the American flag.

Padilla, arriving here by plane, said he had his hands full of packages when he boarded the ship in Havana and could not have touched the flag in question which was attached to the ceiling of the plane.

"Reports that I wiped my hands on the American flag are absolutely false. I am an American people to know we have respect for the American flag and we would not do such a thing."

"We respect the American people and therefore respect their flag. We have said in Cuba and in public and we want their friendship."

Padilla denied he was a delegate to the Pan-American conference in Montevideo as reported in the news story about the alleged flag incident, but was going as a secretary to the Cuban delegation.

OHIO, UTAH JOINED BY PENNSYLVANIA IN SEALING REPEAL

Prohibitionists Win Tareheel State by More Than 2 to 1 and Eke Out Victory in Palmetto Commonwealth.

DECEMBER 5 DATE FOR FINAL REPEAL

Wet Margin Is 4 to 1 in Quaker State, 2 to 1 in Ohio and Fairly Close in Western State.

By the Associated Press.

TLT. Eighteenth amendment was apparently voted out of the constitution yesterday on the face of returns from Utah, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Prohibitionists of Utah conceded defeat at midnight.

In the day's voting, however, North and South Carolina, the one by a thin majority, appeared to have definitely rejected themselves in favor of retention of the dry laws.

Ohio was giving repeal a majority of 600,000 votes. Pennsylvania was voting to elect the national dry laws by four to one. Utah's balloting was running closer but the ratio was standing at about three to two.

Utah's vote was being tallied up to a four-to-one count against the dry law while Ohio was going wet by more than two to one. Late to report last night was Utah and early returns, largely from rural areas, gave the wets a lead of better than two to one. Repeal on large wet margins in Salt Lake City and Ogden, wets hastened to claim the state and the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Utah's vote was being tallied up to a four-to-one count against the dry law while Ohio was going wet by more than two to one. Late to report last night was Utah and early returns, largely from rural areas, gave the wets a lead of better than two to one. Repeal on large wet margins in Salt Lake City and Ogden, wets hastened to claim the state and the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

With 1,432 of 1,831 precincts reported, drys were leading in North Carolina by more than 100,000, the count being 230,060 to 107,793 against the wets. The explanation for his concession was that the city vote was virtually all in at this point and the wets had a hope of being able to wipe out this relatively narrow lead in the count from outlying boxes.

It seemed likely that Pennsylvania would roll up the day's largest margin for repeal. The Quaker State figures being 350,466 wet to 92,722 dry with 1,512 of 7,925 boxes tabulated.

Ohio's creation of a national prohibition, left no question about its attitude, returns from 6,778 of 8,585 precincts giving the wets 1,064,799 to 456,901.

Utah, which, thanks to a difference in time, probably will enjoy the distinction of being the 36th state to vote against national prohibition, was going for repeal in early returns. Three hundred and two of 798 precincts showed 36,165 wet ballots to 22,073 dry votes. Wets saw the early trend conclusive evidence of victory.

U. S. SHOWS INTEREST IN TECHWOOD PROJECT

Government housing experts are evidencing keen interest in the Techwood drive low-rental apartment project, according to F. D. Burge, of Burge and Stevens, architects for the project, who returned Tuesday from Washington where he has been going over the plans for the Atlanta project.

with experts in the housing division of the public works department.

"Similar projects have been completed in New York and Chicago, but Atlanta is the first city of its size to be granted a federal loan for such a development," Mr. Burge said. "For this reason, the government housing experts are particularly interested in seeing the Techwood drive development get under way as soon as possible."

PRESIDENT PUSHES CREDIT EXPANSION

Many Inflationary Proposals Are Pigeonholed by Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Amid the persistent clamor from farm states and agricultural spokesmen for price fixing and inflation to lift price levels, President Roosevelt and his aides today pushed along unperturbed the widespread administration credit expansion program.

A half dozen inflationary proposals thrust before him by champions of monetary changes all apparently had been pigeonholed in the presidential desk while the chief executive pursued his credit and gold buying policy.

Purchasing gold, considered by many economists a step toward the commodity dollar which Mr. Roosevelt was understood to favor, went along quietly in domestic and foreign markets, with the upward price swing for the metal in recent weeks temporarily halted at yesterday's $32.84 an ounce quotation. A market holiday was described as partially accountable.

The Reconstruction Corporation, supplying the financial sinews for the credit-broadening and gold-buying program, speeded up parts of its plans to feed millions of dollars into business channels to help revive trade and commerce.

The farm administration and its companion credit administration forged ahead with money distribution and credit plans with the latter refinancing more farm mortgages in October than in any previous month and accelerating its work this month.

Officials of the farm credit agency said that last month an aggregate of $30,500,000 in mortgages was refinanced, as compared with $15,000,000 in September of the previous year. Mortgages now are being refinanced at the rate of just under $2,000,000 daily, with the November total expected to top $50,000,000.

Although lacking statistics for approximating totals, the farm administration said millions were going to cotton growers in loans at 10 cents a pound, handled primarily through banks and co-operatives, which will not be required to report until next July.

Other Loans Studied. Preparations were hurried for loans on corn and the possibility of lending on wheat and peanuts was being studied.

The loans on crop yields are underwritten by the Reconstruction Corporation.

ECONOMY TO RULE COUNCIL'S ACTIONS

Budget Commission Expected To Prevent Over-anticipation of Revenue.

By HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

Despite the fact that the 1934 city council is regarded as a conservative body in so far as economy is concerned, conservatives in governmental expenditure Tuesday viewed the first meeting of the new municipal budget commission as a stabilizing influence which would protect the city from what was termed "another spending orgy."

Mayor James L. Key Tuesday called the first meeting of the budget commission, composed of the most part of ultra-conservative members of council, for 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

The commission is to estimate receipts for the coming year, to make up a suggested allocation of the various anticipations and to report to city council at its first meeting in December. The 1934 council can change allocations as it sees fit. It can transfer sums from one department to another, or it can wipe out departments, but it can not exceed anticipations as set up by the budget commission in its allocations.

During the 1933 session of the general assembly, a charter amendment setting up such a commission and empowering it to dictate anticipations was approved. It is now law and a part of the charter. If the council should exceed anticipations made by the budget commission, those voting in the affirmative for such excess would be liable personally under the law, and could be prosecuted.

Conservation in estimating anticipations is guaranteed through another clause, which makes members of the commission liable if they overestimate revenue.

In fact, Atlanta next year may, and in all probability will, pass the first year in its history when anticipated revenue is actually realized. In every other year in recent history, there have been deficits or the municipality was forced to trim allocations during the year to prevent cash deficits.

In addition to the mayor, B. Graham West, city comptroller; Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee; Alderman G. Everett Millican and J. Sid Tiller are members of the commission.

Revenue for 1934 is now estimated at approximately what it was for 1933, about $8,500,000.

BETTER BUSINESS SEEN BY MRS. LOFTIS

Business is better and the buying public is more optimistic, Mrs. J. S. Loftis, general manager of the Loftis Jewelry Company, of Chicago, said Tuesday. She is spending a few days here on a tour of the company's branch offices throughout the country, and visited the local store at Broad and Alabama streets.

Before coming here, she visited Houston, Omaha and Pittsburgh, and saw in those places an indication that the holiday trade this year would be good.

Much of the merchandise, Mrs. Loftis pointed out, was bought in June, effecting considerable savings, and in many instances meaning a savings as high as 50 per cent to shoppers.

The Loftis Jewelry Company, organized by Peter Swift Loftis, was started in Philadelphia in 1838. Headquarters were moved to Chicago in 1892, since when many branches have been opened. J. S. Loftis, son of the founder and Mrs. Loftis' husband, is president.

Mrs. Loftis has been with the company 29 years, working up through practically every department to her present responsible position. C. L. Meador, manager of the local branch, has been with the company 15 years.

Sturdivant to Probe "Protection Racket"

Reports that merchants and businessmen are being charged "protection taxes" by certain supernumerary policemen are being investigated by Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant, and four "supers" said to be involved in the "racket" have been ordered to appear before him today, Chief Sturdivant said.

Chief Sturdivant declined to reveal the names of the officers mentioned in the complaints "until they have had an opportunity of presenting their side." The "racket," he said, involved promises to guard stores from burglary in exchange for fees.

'Atlanta Boy Makes Good On Hollywood Movie Lots

Among the "local boys who make good" is Eugene (Cracker) Henderson, son of Mrs. Mildred P. Henderson, of 629 Cherokee avenue, S. Lowe Henderson, who also is receiving attention from the movie makers.

"Cracker" Henderson is now making a picture with Jack Oakie, to whom he owes much of his progress, it was said. "Cracker" was educated in the Lee Street school, and worked here for several years before going to California.

THE EARTH UNEARTHLY.

Fiction writers who use the phrases common to their craft, such as "the witching hours before dawn," need instruction in the new and unusual. If they want to feel the actual presence of the weirdness of a nascent earth; if they would feel the throbbing undercurrent of life as it has coursed through time, and feel a vicious little tingle course along their spines, let them study ornithology at its best—in the early morning. And by early, I don't mean 5 o'clock start and 6 o'clock arrival. I mean for them to start from camp at 3:30 a. m. and by 4 to be at their destination.

A common scene of this sort I recall from the assistance of a certain professor under whom I studied. Our bird class was encamped on a large lake, and we were asked to be at the dock on certain mornings at unheard-of times. And we went! Standing on the dock, silent and chilly, we waited for Bert to bring the launch from the boathouse. A throb of motors came to us through the seemingly luminous mist, and finally the boat itself appeared, the motors were silenced and it slid in to a stop beside the wharf as Bert tossed me a bowline. Whippoorwills from two or three places on the lake were making the air mournful with their calls. Launch was stowed in the stern; students, eight in number, clambered aboard, and we headed for the open lake.

Swimming through a diaphanous world of mist, there might as well have been no land whatever in existence. There was a change in the tempo of the throb of the boat; faintly I could see Bert shake his head, for he was passing through a shallow channel; land must be there beneath us, if nowhere else. Light began to come from somewhere. I couldn't find the source, but it was there, and we needed nothing else save ears for our birds. There came a long, rolling, rattling laugh through the mist. Were the gods mocking our futile efforts to find our way? Were we simply chessmen on a board too vast to realize it?

The mocking laugh became a real-

Mell R. Wilkinson, Civic Leader, Honored at Appreciation Luncheon

An appreciation luncheon was given Tuesday by the Lions Club at the Henry Grady hotel for Mell R. Wilkinson, prominent business and civic leader of Atlanta.

Joe Wolfe, former president of the club, presided, and Colonel F. J. Faxon, life-long friend of Mr. Wilkinson, acted as master of ceremonies. At the conclusion of the luncheon, a certificate of appreciation was presented to Mr. Wilkinson.

A humorous twist was given the proceedings when Mr. Wolfe introduced Mr. Wilkinson and Colonel Faxon responded, speaking as Wilkinson. He reviewed his own (Wilkinson's) accomplishments, which included various projects put over by Mr. Wilkinson while president of the Chamber of Commerce.

He secured the federal reserve bank, helped land the 1914 Shriners' convention for Atlanta, raised $80,000 for Tech, presented a plaza plan to the legislature, started the movement for vital statistics in Georgia, sponsored a foreign trade conference, sponsored the first Southeastern Fair, helped to secure Emory University, had safety first signs installed near Atlanta schools, started a "build now" campaign, and started the first campaign for organized parking rules for the city.

Mr. Wilkinson responded in with a brief talk, in which he thanked the Lions for their tribute.

A telegram of congratulations was received from H. E. Choate, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who reviewed Mr. Wilkinson's civic accomplishments. Other guests at the luncheon were Lee Ashcraft, Mr. Wilkinson's business partner, and Stanley Harris, head of the national council of Boy Scouts.

TRIAL LAWYERS CLASH IN BERLIN ARSON CASE

State Attorney Defends Conduct and Way Trial is Being Conducted.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—(AP)—A lively interchange came in the re-charged arson trial today when Defense Attorney Paul Teichert complained that a waiter's testimony regarding the identification of one of the five defendants was unreliable and "bound to make a disastrous impression abroad."

The chief prosecutor, Karl August Werner, shouted in reply that "if anyone abroad is dissatisfied with the way business is conducted in this court, that's no disaster for Germany."

The Nazi public cheered the remark.

The interchange involved Marinus Van Der Lubbe, a young Dutchman who confessed setting the parliament building on fire last February 27. With him on trial are three Bulgarians, Georgi Dimitroff, Blagoi Popoff and Vassil Taneff, and the former communist whip in the reichstag, Ernst Torgler.

Operator Holzhäuser, of the secret service, earlier had described the arrest of the defendants. He said that en route to the police station in a cab Dimitroff had tried to hide a piece of paper, which was revealed later as a communist handbill.

Dimitroff's passport, the witness went on, was faked.

Another exciting day was promised tomorrow when Dr. Joseph Goebbels, the minister of public enlightenment and propaganda, will testify.

GERMAN LABOR URGED TO BACK NAZI CHIEF

Unions Asked To Aid in Creating "Solid Front" for Germany.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—(AP)—In a message directed to millions of workers consolidated into a gigantic labor front the Nazi trade union commissioner, Robert Ley, appealed today for a "solid backing for Chancellor Hitler" in Sunday's elections.

"Our honor must be restored," Ley told them. "Unanimous approval for the government's policy will restore German laborers in the eyes of the world."

"With honor you are workers; without honor you are slaves."

At the polls German voters are expected to do two things:

Vote yes on the Hitler slate for the new reichstag.

Endorse the foreign policy of the Hitler government, especially its withdrawal from the League of Nations and the arms conference, and its insistence upon equality in the councils of the nations.

Death Takes Old Negro Honored by Texas Capital

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Bob Harrison, aged negro barber, who was so well liked by the white folks that the Austin city council named a street in his honor, died here today. He was 78.

Harrison was the favorite barber of Governor Hogg and Colonel E. M. House and had performed his tonsorial duties on many Texas notables. Included among his customers was former Postmaster-General Albert S. Burleson.

As a tribute to the old negro, the council designated one of Austin's streets as "Bob Harrison street," two years ago.

FINAL WARM SPRINGS DRIVE.

A final drive for subscriptions to the fund for the Georgia Hall building at Warm Springs is under way this week.

It is hoped that the response will be sufficient to enable the work on the building to be speeded to such an extent as will make it possible to hold in the new structure the dinner at which it will be presented to President Roosevelt as the head of the Warm Springs Foundation.

The fund is still somewhat short of the $100,000 cost of the new building which will replace the antiquated old inn that has been serving the inmates of the Warm Springs institution and the traveling public as well.

The outstanding feature of the drive for the fund has been the unique "Builders of Georgia Hall" book, in which will appear the names of every donor to the fund, and which will be presented to President Roosevelt and remain in the new building as a permanent record of the building campaign.

The names of those who subscribe after this week will not appear in this unique volume, containing as it does the honor roll of a campaign in the interest of an appealing humanitarian institution.

Under the leadership of Cason J.
Callaway, of LaGrange, and Cator
Woodford, of Atlanta, a six-month intensive campaign was carried on for the funds to construct the building. Although the fund was not complete, work was started on the building some four months ago in the hope that it would be practically complete by the time of the arrival of President Roosevelt for his annual Thanksgiving visit.

Now the completion of the $100,000 fund is needed to hasten the finish of construction and decoration. There should be a cordial response to this last appeal for Georgia Hall that will see the full fund subscribed before the week is out.

WISE DIPLOMACY.

The announcement that the American battle fleet will quit the Pacific for the Atlantic next spring carries a greater significance than merely the gesture of assurance to Japan that the Lavinia visit to the United States is not inimicable to her interests.

More than that, it gives evidence of wiser, more understanding policy in the conduct of our relations with other nations—a policy that has as its foundation the desire to retain the friendship and admiration of all other peoples.

Such a policy is a far cry from that followed by the last republican administration, under the Stimson regime of the state department. There was no care to avoid offending nations with which we had maintained friendly relations for years, and apparently no taking of stock of the loss we would suffer from such estrangements.

Under the Stimson regime the Japanese would probably have been told that the matter of a conference between Russia and the United States was none of their business—and fuel would thus have been added to the inflammatory activities of the jingo element of both countries.

The presence of the American fleet in the Pacific has been the chief bone of contention for the Japanese radicals. The announcement of its intended removal, while not in any way connected with the forthcoming Russian parley, effectively silences the Japanese jingoes.
More than its immediate effect,

the simple announcement concerning the battle fleet tells a story of the return of reason and broadmindedness to the state department of the American government—a growth in wise diplomacy all the more welcome in view of the bungling and prejudicial policies of the republican administrations since the war.

HOW RUSSIA IS GOVERNED.

In view of the approaching conference in Washington between President Roosevelt and Commissioner of Foreign Affairs Litvinoff, wide comment is being given to the make-up of the Russian government—known as the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics—especially as it differs from the democratic form of government in the United States.

The Soviet republic is the union of several sister republics, each of which has a separate government, but it differs from the form of government in the United States, it is pointed out by the United States News of Washington, in that one of the seven—the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet republic—is greater in area, population and political strength than the other six combined.

The constitution of the U. S. S. R., adopted in 1924, invests supreme executive, legislative and judicial power in the union congress of soviets, composed of 2,300 delegates elected from every section, and which meets biennially.

The supreme power is not actually vested by this body, but is transferred by it to the central executive committee, the election of which is in reality its chief duty.

The Soviet congress is formed, as in the United States, of upper and lower branches, both of which must pass on all legislation or governmental policies.

The present executive committee is composed of 450 members of one chamber of the Soviet congress and 135 of the other. The whole committee meets but seldom, delegating its authority to a group of 29 of its members, nine elected by each chamber of congress and the remaining nine jointly by the two chambers.

The president of the executive committee is designated as the president of the Soviet union.

The supreme court is amenable to the executive committee, which names the judges. This is in sharp contrast to the American supreme court which has the power to overrule on constitutional grounds the acts of congress. The various commissariats are similar to the departments charged with the direction of the sundry phases of the American government.

Above this governmental set-up is a super-government—the communist party, of which Stalin is the dictator. It decides the policies of the government, the Soviet congress taking its orders from the party, and practically all the governmental offices are held by party members. Membership in the party is very small, probably not much more than a million, and is accorded only to those who have demonstrated unwavering loyalty to the tenets of sovietism.

The electorate—workers, soldiers and peasants—name only the delegates to local soviets. Then come county congresses, provincial congresses, state congresses and finally the union congress, each congress naming the delegates to the next higher body.

The elaborate governmental setup has little or no influence in deciding the policies to be followed.
Since Stalin and the group around him have the right to elect and expel the members of the communist party, their control is all-powerful.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By Pierre Van Paassen

Why Conference Failed.

Fundamentally, the failure of the disarmament conference is not due to the incompetence of the diplomats who were engaged in the negotiations, but entirely due to the lack of good faith. Too many forces in Germany and in other countries, are working against disarmament; too many steel and aviation interests; too many Thysons, Cresses, Skodas, Victors, Armstrongs and other armament firms.
Herr Von Papen recently declared in Frankfurt that the manufacture of arms should be a state monopoly, "in order to eliminate the great secret influences" which the munition makers exercise on politics and politicians.

It may seem somewhat strange that this declaration should come from a gentleman who is a personal friend of August Thyssen and who is a member of the directorate of the Comité Des Forges, the greatest steel trust in Europe, but it is important that the responsible representative of a great country has the courage to say in public what others have been whispering for a long time. There will be no disarmament, no halt in the race which runs to a new era of unimaginable frightfulness, unless all the powers, not Germany alone, but all the powers, accept the establishment of control which will include interdiction of armament manufacture by private enterprises. That the conference failed is not by any means Germany's sole fault. All the powers represented in Geneva carry responsibility in this matter.

No Taxes.

Many householders in other places may envy the little Cornish town of Barnegat, where, according to the Boston Guardian, for the second half-year in succession it has been found unnecessary to levy taxes, all the local expenses having been met by gifts and from municipally-owned property. But Barnegat is not alone.
Blythe, over in the state of Georgia,
I am told, owes no taxes. Dora-31 cubic meters of chopped firewood.

SOME CANDID COMMENTS
UPON OUR UNBIDDEN GUESTS.

Contrary to popular notions there is no characteristic evidence of the presence of a tapeworm, except the finding of segments of the parasite, or the detection of the eggs with the microscope. The host is as likely to look any appearance as to have one.
The parasite, though not necessarily a tapeworm, nor infallibly a sign of any infestation, is the finding of what doctors call eosinophils in the blood. It is a larger proportion of leukocytes taking the red stain of eosin in the blood specimen examined under the microscope. While this condition is suggestive it has pointed the way to the correct diagnosis in many puzzling cases.

Particularly in cases of trichinosis, the finding of an increased percentage of eosinophils in the blood examination a significant point.

Trichinosis, also called trichinel-iasis, is infestation of man by the trichina worm, which is a small round worm which passes its entire life cycle in man, rat or hog.
The adult worm is scarcely one-fifth inch in length, but the larva of trichina penetrates the human stomach and lodges in the muscles or various organs. The illness this produces might be mistaken for typhoid fever or "chummers"—it is a feverish, painful—and in some cases proves fatal.
Trichina infestation occurs in many instances from the unwise eating of raw ham or pork, which is not thoroughly cooked. The trichinae which happens to contain the trichina larvae.
These can be detected in pork only by microscopic examination. The U. S. small inspection no longer attempts to detect trichinosis. Instead the government warns all persons not to eat pork or sausage made from pork.
It has been observed that the trichina is not, until it has been properly cooked. Of course thorough cooking kills any trichinae or other parasites the meat may contain.

Eight or ten days after eating the raw or underdone pork or poorly cooked sausage the victim comes down with fever, headache, and general symptoms which may mislead the physician. The trichinae, which are "muscular trichinae." Puffiness of the skin over the eyes and nose is a suspicious symptom. When in such acute, progressive illness the blood examination discloses eosinophilia, then it is in order to procure a wee-bit of muscle for microscopic examination to discover the spiral worms encysted in the muscle. A specimen of muscle, and it obtains the wee-bit of muscle or pectoral muscle as readily as an injection of antitoxin or similar medicine is made into muscle.

We have now discussed the Big Six intestinal parasites—round worms, pinworms, the three tapeworms (the pork and fish tapeworms) and the dread Little Trichina. There are others, but the Big Six comprise the lot for this country.

What we are not saying about treatment or remedies will never harm anybody. We're going to leave it to that.
The host of the trichinae is a parasite which requires treatment but better leave the treatment wholly in the hands of his own physician.

Questions and Answers

About Community Chest

"Why should I give to the Community Chest this year, when the federal government is giving money for relief funds?" a question often asked the volunteer workers who are trying to achieve success in their endeavor to help Atlanta's helpless.

The money allocated for federal relief through the agency of the federal emergency relief administration under the direction of Harry Hopkins is not meant to replace the money for the Community Chest, but to perform a different service. Georgia's share of about $1,000,000 a month comes only so long as Georgia's citizens show the willingness to carry their share of the load.

Ronald Ransom, chairman of the Georgia relief commission administering federal relief funds, said:
"Federal emergency relief funds are for the relief of able-bodied unemployed. It is believed that these federal funds should be supplementing the work of the agencies administering federal funds in different ways from the work being done by the agencies administering funds subscribed to the Community Chest. Any relief these federal funds are to take the place of local Community

Chest funds is wholly erroneous and misleading.

"Clearly any failure to provide suf-

THE NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By Paul Mallon.

SENSE WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The inner coterie of southsayers have Mr. Roosevelt's money policy all figured out.

As they see it the president is proving to be his own best financial adviser. They think he has looked just a little further ahead at the situation than the muddled experts who swarm about him.

These seers are betting their money that the president will not do anything important about the currency before congress meets.
They will be able to play each congressional money faction against the other and get the soundest solution out of all of them.

They do not guarantee that prediction, but they can now see, for the first time, how it would be wise and sensible.

SOLUTION It is such a simple solution that the smart boys wonder why they never thought of it.

The inflationists have been agitating for one course. The devaluationists have been demanding another. The silver bloc has been pulling for its pet theories. And the alarmists have been running around crying about what congress would do when it convenes.

Any course Mr. Roosevelt might choose now would put him on the defense against congress. He might have trouble holding the political bulls in line if he tries to take them by the horns. If he keeps a rein on them he can guide them.

These expectations have calmed down the more sensible agitators here. They have begun to recall that patience is a virtue.
Also that heading plunging will sooner or later bring you to a stone wall. Heads-up strategy may get you around it.

PLANS Mr. Roosevelt's own personal plans for the next two months have not been announced, but they tend to confirm the expectations of the soothsayers.

He expects to spend two weeks in the south, during the latter part of this month. He probably will go to Hyde Park for a week or ten days at Christmas time. That means he may be in Washington only half the time between now and when congress meets in January.

RETREAT The president's home at Hyde Park is a perfect hideaway. No president has ever had one quite like it.
The press remains at his office in Poughkeepsie, five miles from his house. Annoying people, including government officials, cannot get near him. Similarly he can call in as many men as he wants to see privately without having his probable intentions spread all over the country. For instance, he could have Milo Reno or John D. Rockefeller in for lunch and no one would be the wiser.
That is why he likes Hyde Park so much.

SILVER The silver agitators have been hot the last few days.
They passed the tip around in Wall Street Monday that a 60 or 80-cent silver price was coming shortly.
The trouble with their tips is that all of them have been wrong in the past.

The flow of news on that subject indicates very clearly that there is considerable speculation in the silver market and certain interests are encouraging it with rumors probably for their own private gain.

They have cried wolf so often that even if they had a good tip no one would believe it.

DEBTS Those closest to the British debt negotiations say the effects to be expected from failure are being highly exaggerated. The insiders knew from the first that agreement was almost out of the question in view of existing international monetary conditions. The time was not ripe. Both the British officials and our own authorities realized it. That is why the British sent over Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, instead of one of the cabinet members.

Consequently the disappointment higher up is not nearly so keen as surface reports suggest.

NOTES Senators on the stock market committee double up in laughter when they tell the one about the two burglars who broke into a New York city home.

The two enterprising flashlight men contemplated a big haul because the house was massive. They worked themselves up to the door of the safe. There they found they were in the home of a certain securities banker. They read his name on the safe. They recalled his senate testimony about how he sold bonds in the mad day of 1929. They dropped their flashlights and ran, thus managing to escape without losing a cent of their own money.

A newsman walked into the office of the best governmental financial adviser a few days ago and asked:
"Mr. So-and-So, if Mr. Roosevelt gave you complete control of currency tomorrow, what would you do?"
The answer came back fast: "I'd resign."

When They Lose Faith in Their Weapons, They Always Take to Their Heels

By Robert Quillen

Last summer a certain small-town merchant bought his winter stock of shoes. In early October, having received no word from the manufacturers, he began to write impatient letters to demand service.

The manufacturers answered politely, but they sent no shoes except an occasional shipment of a half-dozen pair. In desperation the merchant finally got out his car and drove to the factory to investigate.

He found shoes packed in all available space, ready for shipment.
The manufacturers were not eager to part with their wares, for each tomorrow promised them a better price.

Merchants who handle other goods are having similar experiences.
The cause, of course, is inflation—the mild and hesitant but continually effective inflation we are having now.

Those who demand more drastic and more immediate action speak of "controlled inflation."

Did you ever see a controlled mob—or a controlled theater panic—or a controlled bank run?

It is, to be sure, an easy matter to control printing presses. One merely touches a switch to start or stop them.

But governments—that inflate the national currency must deal with something more than presses and paper. They must deal with human nature—and nobody has yet found a way to control that.

"Fiat money"—that is, money not backed by gold or any other thing except the nation's credit—is as good as gold while the people have faith in it.

There are several hundred million dollars of United States notes in circulation now, and nobody questions their value.

But the printing of too much paper starts talk and talk results in wild rumors and wild rumors start a panic.

Everybody tries to exchange his money for commodities—for grain, stocks, land. Prices mount skyward. Money loses value every day.
And then the merchant says to himself: "Why should I sell this $5 tote for $6 when I must pay more to replace it?" And farmers and businessmen say: "Why should we sell our stuff, even at these crazy prices, when we can get twice as much tomorrow?"

Business stops and money won't buy anything. The poor starve.
Bonds and insurance policies and mortgages are so much junk—still worth their face value in money, but the money is worthless.

Perhaps inflation wouldn't function that way this time. But if forty bills have gone down in the rapids, it takes nerve to ride in the next one.

GOERING OUTBURST MAY AID U.S. TRADE

Soviet Takes Exception to Slur on Credit and May Cancel Orders.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering's outburst last Saturday in which he implied that Russia did not pay her bills may cost German firms millions of marks and benefit American and other sellers, the soviet ambassador indicated today in an energetic protest.

The soviet, Leo Chincuk, made a categorical demand upon the German government for a public disavowal of Goering's statements that "I would like our relations with soviet Russia to be better" and that more German workers could live because of Russia's orders if "Russia paid her bills."

The Prussian premier and national minister without portfolio gave the assertions during testimony in the reichstag fire trial.

Chincuk yesterday presented a verbal note and tomorrow will confer with Foreign Minister Konstantin Von Neurath about it.

Reports said also a broadcast from Moscow station quoted the Russian ambassador as indicating that Germany in the future would have no occasion for doubting the validity of Russian notes since the orders probably would be withdrawn.

Meanwhile, Ambassador Zulueta of Spain visited Baron Von Neurath to ask an interpretation of Goering's remarks on the Spanish revolution, which he described as more bloody than the German revolution.

$325 in Sweepstake Prizes Await Winners of Ad Contest

By JAY ORR JR.

Another ad-writing day! But not as joyful as previous ones, for contestants realize that today is next to the last week of the contest. Many Atlantans have spent pleasant evenings writing ads to find they turned out to be profitable ones.

Many have expressed their regret that the contest is almost ended with only one more day in which to enter ads after today.

Contestants are looking forward now to the awarding of the sweepstake prizes which total $325 in cash. Remember that every ad entered in the contest from the very first week will be judged for this awarding. If you have not entered a number of ads, do so today in order to have more than one chance of winning.

Go to any of the co-operating stores and ask for official Ad-Writing paper. Write your ad in any way you wish and illustrate it in any way you wish either by drawing or clipping pictures and pasting them on the ad attractively. Enter your advertisement at the Ad-Writing headquarters, 137 Peachtree Arcade.

Headquarters will open at 8:30 and remain open until 5:30. Winners will be announced Sunday.

Marie Dressler Birthday Poems Will Win $17.50 in Prizes in Week

Right now, while you have that inspiration, jot it down and send it in. Who knows? It might be the big winner.

The idea is that if you write a poem, short but sweet, and send it to The Constitution, it may win you $2.50 and a chance for the big money. The subject of the poem must be that Marie Dressler, whose 62d birthday will be the object of celebration all over the nation.

If your poem wins out in the Atlanta eliminations, it will be sent to Miss Dressler and judged for the award of $250 offered by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, producers of Miss Dressler's latest picture, "Christopher Bean," which will be shown at Loew's Grand theater beginning November 17.

It need not be long—15 lines is the maximum limit; but put the punch into it and let Marie know that Atlanta loves her just as much as any other city of the world. Poetry, they say, is a gift; and here is an opportunity for you to write a poem and win a gift.

Litvinoff Officially Greeted By State Department Aid

By R. H. HIPPELHEUSER.
NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—In a thin fog, the liner Berengaria lay at anchor in New York bay, down by the narrows.

Two coast guard cutters—filled with officials, newspaper and camera men—pulled to, alongside.

Over the A-deck railing, high above, peered a round face—grinning broadly—beneath a large, broad-brimmed black hat.

Necks craned on the cutters. "That's he," came the cry. Arms went up in greeting.

And Maxim Litvinoff—the soviet commissar for foreign affairs, one of the bolshewiks that built a communist nation, one of the premier diplomats of the world—pulled off his hat and waved back.

James C. Dunn, protocol officer of the state department, was first off the cutters. Behind him was Peter A. Bogdanov, chairman of Amtorg, his long, gray goatee blowing in the stiff breeze; next, Boris Skvirsky, the soviet "unofficial ambassador" to Washington.

Waiting both arms forward, in a wide sweep, he cried, "Come on"—and he led the way, up the stairs to a sun-deck smoking room.

3 NEW SUSPECTS HELD IN DRIVE ON ROBBERIES

Three new suspects were being held Tuesday by police in connection with the series of robberies which has been increasing in number during the last week.

One of the three men, George Harris, 30, was held in connection with the robbery of street car motemen, police said.

The other two, Herman Burger, 16, and Fred Harris, 17, both of Central avenue, were arrested in an investigation of the holdup of a garage at 25 1/2 street Saturday night in which H. F. Merck, night watchman, was left bound and gagged after being robbed of $2.

Burger and Harris were taken to the 10-cent store of S. E. Nissenbaum, 467 Edgewood avenue, was robbed of a small amount of change, police were told. Burglars who entered the offices of Randall Brothers on McDaniel street failed to find money in the safe, but took several batons from trucks, it was reported to police.

Peter Karas, of 801 Gordon street, operator of a restaurant at Whitehall and Cooper streets, reported that two negroes jumped on the running board of his automobile Tuesday morning as he was going to his place of business, and robbed him of $70 in cash.

W. S. Kersey, Lakewood car operator who was held up Monday night, reported to police Tuesday that $20 was taken from him by two men and a woman. While the car was stopped and the robbery was under way, an automobile containing some men and women came along, but the parties were scared away by pistols in the hands of the bandits, Kersey reported.

Sidney Whitlock, of 128 Baker street, N. E., reported to police Tuesday night that he was held up by a negro bandit who rifled the cash register of DuKyan's ice cream concern, 119 Edgewood avenue, of $5. Whitlock is an employee of the company.

M. Kessler, manager of the Bell Pawn shop, 243 Peters street, reported to police that robbers entered the establishment at about 9 o'clock Tuesday night. He said he was unable to determine if the thieves, who entered by breaking a window, obtained any merchandise.

SOVIET CELEBRATES RED OCTOBER DAY WITH GREAT GUSTO

MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Soviet Russia with its customary gusto today celebrated the 16th birthday anniversary of the most important date on its calendar—the October revolution—coinciding with the scheduled arrival in the United States of its foreign commissar, Maxim Litvinoff.

M. Litvinoff went to America for conversations with President Roosevelt concerning recognition of the soviet union.

Newspapers found space to refer prominently to this coincidence despite the fact that their columns were filled this day more than any other with praise of the "socialist construction" and the forward march of the soviet union in world affairs.

"For the whole world," the newspaper Iavetski said editorially, "the meeting of M. Litvinoff and President Roosevelt in Washington has a great historical significance."

"By initiating these negotiations the world's leading capitalist power confirms that all the latent hopes of extermination of the U. S. S. R. now are pure fancy."

Meanwhile, in the red square the red legions of the proletariat paraded in another day-long demonstration in which approximately 1,000,000 persons were estimated to have participated.

DISABLED VETERAN SUES TO SAVE HOME FROM SALE BY CITY

James A. Huggins, disabled war veteran, was granted a temporary injunction Tuesday restraining Riley Elder, municipal revenue collector, from selling his home at 298 Ormond street, to satisfy taxes due in the amount of $42.75.

Huggins claims tax exemption under the federal statute applying to compensation funds, alleging that the home was purchased with money received from the government as compensation. The petition recites that title to the property was taken in Mrs. Huggins' name, in order to avoid possible expenses of administration in the event of Huggins' death, which he states he feared would ensue from a number of operations he was about to undergo at the time the home was purchased.

Significant enough, November 11, Armistice Day, has been set by Judge E. D. Thomas for hearing the petition for permanent injunction.

J. W. GOLDSMITH JR. ILL AT JACKSONVILLE

J. Wickliff Goldsmith Jr., widely known in the automobile business in Atlanta, is suffering from pneumonia in a hospital at Jacksonville, Fla., according to Press dispatches Tuesday night quoted Dr. John B. Black, the attending physician, as saying Mr. Goldsmith's condition was "quite satisfactory," but that he would not be out of danger for several days.

Mr. Goldsmith, who suffered an attack of pneumonia last spring, was in Jacksonville on business when he was stricken. He was taken to the hospital last Saturday. Dr. Black said he probably would remain in the hospital for two weeks.

Mrs. Goldsmith, Mrs. James Campbell, their daughter, Mrs. E. E. Dallas, who is Mrs. Goldsmith's sister, and J. Wickliff Goldsmith III are in Jacksonville, having left Atlanta when they learned of Mr. Goldsmith's illness. The Goldsmith residence is at 2583 Habersham road.

Emory Observes Dads' Day Today On Campus and at Banquet Tonight

Registration at 10 o'clock this morning in the library building of Emory University will open the sixth annual Emory Dads' Day program sponsored every year by the Y. M. C. A., with over a hundred fathers from over the state and elsewhere expected to attend, according to William F. Quillian, student chairman in charge of the program.

Inspection tours of the campus, including the hospital, student activities building, museum, library, athletic department, and other buildings, will occupy the morning. A number of the fraternities are planning luncheons for visiting fathers following the tours.

Freshman and sophomore football teams will meet in a game at 3 o'clock immediately following the reception. Bleacher seats have been erected for the guests.

Hugh Howell, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, will deliver the principal address at the banquet at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Henry Grady hotel, climaxing the Dads' Day program. Fathers and faculty members will be guests of the Y. M. C. A. and students. Dr. J. Sam Guy, professor of chemistry, will serve as toastmaster, and President Harvey W. Cox will deliver an address. The Emory Glee Club will furnish music.

'GANG SENTENCE-FACED BY ATLANTA ATTORNEY

John W. Thomas, Sentenced for Larceny, Under Indictment for Assault.

John W. Thomas, attorney under indictment for assault with intent to murder and also facing a sentence of from one to two years for larceny after trust, was lodged in Fulton tower Tuesday. He was arrested at Zebulon, Ga., by George Pounds, investigator for the solicitor-general's office.

Thomas was convicted of larceny after trust, February 26, but was given an opportunity by the court to make restitution, the court stating at the time that if some restitution were made, the fact would be taken into consideration in imposing sentence. Thomas failed to return for sentence, it was said.

The assault indictment was returned by the last grand jury on charges preferred by M. C. Moore, of 789 Ponce de Leon avenue, and grew out of an altercation near the Canter Riding Club, in which Thomas is alleged to have attacked and wounded Moore with a post hole digger.

Thomas will face Judge E. D. Thomas Wednesday morning, when he probably will be sentenced on the larceny charge. Bond in the assault is fixed at $500.

MAJESTIC RADIO GAIN IS REPORTED HERE

For the fifth consecutive month, Majestic radio shipments have shown a substantial increase over each preceding month, according to a statement released by Le Roi J. Williams, executive vice president and general manager of the Grigsby-Grunow Company, manufacturers of Majestic radios, refrigerators and tubes.

"Our October radio shipments of 66,543 sets have not been exceeded since February, 1930," states Mr. Williams, "and in spite of this tremendous volume of radio shipments we still have unfilled orders on hand for more than 30,000 radios. This will necessitate the continued employment of our 5,000 people in our plants for some time to come, in order to fulfill the demands for our new merchandise. New styling of cabinets along modernistic lines, together with a new standard of radio performance, have greatly contributed to the healthy increases our company has been enjoying the past several months."

Mr. Williams also expressed his opinion that the administration's NRA program has likewise helped the sales of Majestic products.

Jangled nerves sap your vitality

Every time you let jangled nerves get the best of you... Every time you bang the door off its hinges, or "want to scream," you're taking it out of yourself.

Door banging, screaming and such antics are rude to say the least, and make your family and your friends uncomfortable... But—most important, each fit of temper you give way to is sapping your own vitality, making the next tantrum easier, ruining your health, your digestion, your disposition.

Watch your nerves. Get your full amount of sleep every night. Eat regularly and sensibly. Find time for recreation. And smoke Camels—for Camel's costlier tobaccos never get on your nerves.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand of cigarettes!

S. GEORGIA METHODIST MEET FOR BRUNSWICK

Pastoral Changes Center Interest of Session To Open on November 15.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The South Georgia conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will open its annual session here on the night of November 15. Approximately 100 changes are expected to be made in churches of the eight districts.

Preparations are being made to care for 250 ministers and 200 laymen delegates. The conference sessions will be held in the Rev. J. O. W. Rees is pastor.

Under church custom, Bishop John Moore will be assigned to another episcopal area by the general conference meeting next May in Jackson, Miss. He has been connected with both the North and South Georgia conferences during the past four years.

Ministers who have served four and five years in their pastorate may be returned, under church law, but Methodist leaders said they considered it probable that most of these would be reassigned. Presiding elders who have completed four years in their districts are the Rev. J. O. W. Rees, Dublin district, and the Rev. O. F. Cook, Thomasville district.

Eleven ministers now are completing five years in their respective charges. They are Rev. J. J. Sanders, Pinehurst; H. G. Shearouse, Whigham; T. G. Lambert, Cochran; A. A. White, Brooklet; E. A. Martin, Rockyford; E. F. Morgan, Statesboro; Reese Griffin, Albany; W. A. Kelly, Waycross; E. C. Dowdy, Americus circuit; M. M. Marshall, Bainbridge, and J. P. Dell.

Deaths since the last conference will necessitate some changes. The Rev. J. B. Griner, of Savannah, and Rev. T. F. Drake, Colquitt, died during the year.

The conference will elect 10 delegates, eight clerical and eight laymen, to the general conference next May in Jackson, Miss.

No indication has been given as to who will succeed Bishop Moore.

Eight presiding elders of the conference met last week in Thomasville to consider the probable changes to be made in pastorate. Bishop Moore and his cabinet will make final adjustments after the ministers have been informed of their appointments, before they are made public to the conference.

ATLANTA CONFERENCE, A. M. E., AT COVINGTON

COVINGTON, Ga., Nov. 7.—The Atlanta annual conference of the A. M. E. church will convene here on Friday for its annual session. Bishop W. A. Fountain, A. M. P. D., will preside.

This conference is made up of five presiding elder districts, Atlanta, South Atlanta, West Atlanta, Monticello and Griffin. Drs. W. Boyd Lawrence, J. E. Moses, B. V. Thornton, R. E. Romans and G. B. Lancaster are the presiding elders and are now coaching the pastors and special workers for full reports in the first day session on Wednesday.

Drs. W. G. Scott, Big Bethel; R. J. Jefferson, Allen Temple; D. T. Babcock, St. Paul; J. S. Bryan, Cosmopolitan; H. M. Parker, Flipper Temple; John Harmon, Turner Monumental; A. D. Harlemon, Monticello; G. B. Hannan, H. C. Carwell, D. W. Wiggs, L. A. Stroud, S. A. Laing, H. Warley, J. T. Duhart, R. L. Smith, A. J. Edwards, E. J. Odum, C. K. Knight, M. C. Morris and H. D. Gorman will be among the first to report on Wednesday.

On Tuesday night a program of welcome to the bishop and delegates of the conference by the various colored churches and civic organizations of the city was held.

NAVAL STORES EXHIBIT PLANNED FOR CAPITOL

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 7.—Naval stores interests of Savannah are planning an exhibit illustrating the industry to be placed in the corridors of the capitol in Atlanta. Deaver Gets Lenient On Prohibition Cases

MACON, Ga., Nov. 7.—(AP)—Only one alleged violator of the national prohibition act out of 35 appearing before Judge Bascom S. Deaver in United States court here drew a jail sentence. He was said by court officials to be an old offender. Probation sentences and small fines were given the others. A previous court session Judge Deaver has imposed jail and penitentiary sentences, with only a few getting off with fines.

20,000 AT THOMASTON WITNESS NRA PARADE

THOMASTON, Ga., Nov. 7.—Upson county staged here Tuesday a colorful NRA parade that marched through the flag-draped city before a record crowd of 20,000 people.

It required an hour and a half for the procession to traverse the line of march. Approximately 10,000 took part in the parade, among them being 4,000 school children. Fifty floats, elaborately decorated, and 800 automobiles likewise decorated added color to the occasion.

Five counties sent delegations, and neighboring cities of Macon, Griffin, Barnevillie, Zebulon, Talbotton, Butler, Yatesville, Woodland and Crest were represented.

Outstanding among the floats were those of the Martha Mills, of Silvertown, textile division of the B. F. Goodrich Company, of Akron, and the floats of the Thomaston Cotton Mills, the Peacock Cotton Mills and the Thomaston Bleachery.

Six bands provided music for the parade, as well as for the ceremonies which followed.

Hugh Thurston, mayor of Thomaston, welcomed the large assembly and expressed the city's pride in the parade. He presided at exercises held at the courthouse.

Judge A. H. Freeman, of Newnan, chairman of the Georgia State Recovery Board, delivered the principal address, stressing the far-reaching benefits to be derived from application of NRA principles in all lines of endeavor.

John Morris, president of the Macon chamber of commerce, outlined the comprehensive recovery program, and summed up the many achievements already registered.

made agriculture reward generously those who would give of their time in tending it. He made special reference to the fine highways found in this section and, reminded his audience of the necessity of paving the Nancy Hart highway in order that transportation may continue in all kinds of weather east and west and north and south. Mr. Howell, in concluding his speech, declared he was deeply appreciative of the courtesies and honors bestowed upon him, and would look forward with genuine pleasure to a return visit.

The concluding speaker, Harry Ansley, was introduced. To him goes credit for having arranged for the observance of appreciation night, as well as his aggressiveness in the endeavor to cause the government to create a national program on a portion of the estate owned by Mrs. Mary Jarrett White, near Toccoa, Mr. Ansley, in modest manner, thanked those who had given whole-hearted assistance in the occasion, and declared that any credit given him should go to Mr. Howell, as it had been the noted editor's co-operation which was responsible for any accomplishments.

Hundreds of telegrams were received during the program, from Georgians in all parts of the state who desired to join in the tribute to Mr. Howell. Among the wires received was one from Governor Eugene Talmadge, one from U. S. Senator Richard B. Russell and one from William L. Brady Jr., of Emory University.

A dance at a local hotel tonight, followed by a fox hunt, sponsored by the North Georgia Fox Hunters' Association, brought to a close the festivities of the day to a close.

Halliburton PictureOn India at Georgia

Teeming India, where millions of human beings stare to death, always has plenty to eat for the cows. Contrasted with other lands, where a cow is regarded merely as a source of milk or of pot roasts, India treats this domestic animal as a sacred object.

This condition is vividly pictured in "India Speaks" in which Richard Halliburton, famous author-adventurer, makes a screen debut against an exotic panorama of oriental mystery and romance. "India Speaks" opens a three-day engagement at the Georgia theater today.

Scenes in "India Speaks" show through Halliburton's eyes the tremendous dramatic contrast between the Hindus and their cattle. Cows wander at will everywhere, most of them in charge of proud and devoted guardians, who are more solicitous of the bovine's welfare than an American nursemaid is of a baby.

But the cow situation is just one of many things, unbelievable, brought to light in this splendid picture covering the Indian situation. As will be shown, girls of ten marry men of 50. Men who are about ready to die are dragged along the streets, tied to the tail of a cow, believing in this manner they will be carried to their heaven.

In addition to the feature picture the Georgia will offer Moran and Mack, the two black crows, in "Blue Blackbirds," a cartoon, news and special NRA subject featuring Wheeler and Woolsey of "This is Africa" fame. The Georgia has returned to the regular price of admission. Prices were raised the first part of this week made necessary because of the appearance of Tom Mix and his stage show.

C. Gilbert, of Brownsville, Texas, believes he holds a record of some sort. After two years of angling for a huge fish in the Gulf of Mexico, Gilbert landed a 712-foot gar which weighed 147 pounds.

Culbertsonon Contract*A Slam With a Part-Score

BY ELY CULBERTSON World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

One of the most troublesome problems faced by a great many bridge players is arriving at a proper slam contract when having a part-score. While this is no more difficult with the part-score than without one when one partner has a strong enough hand to justify a forcing bid at some point, many hands are submitted to me on which players found themselves at a loss because the strength was divided and each player, fearing his partner might have a minimum hand, was hesitant at venturing beyond the number of tricks necessary to secure game.

It is, as a matter of fact, no more difficult to forget a part-score than to remember it if both partners are sufficiently attentive to every phase of the bidding situation to read the hidden inferences which every call made in the game of contract bridge must contain. To illustrate how much information can be gained from the simplest bid or take-out, I give the following hand, which was played by my wife, Josephine Culbertson, in game at the Georgia Club in New York city. Her partner was Mr. Albert H. Morehead, of The Bridge World Magazine.

Although accurate analysis of bidding inferences is practically automatic with such a master player as Mrs. Culbertson (or Mr. Morehead), every part of the knowledge she can gain from the bidding is gained by sound reasoning processes. Because of her great ability and experience, this reasoning may appear to be subconscious because it is completed so fast, but all the necessary steps are nevertheless present in her mind, and the explanation of each bid may prove highly educational to those who wish to achieve the same results.

PAUL-BONCOUR PRAISES HOME LOAN PROGRESSU. S. RECOVERY EFFORTS*GRA TIFIES HUTCHISON*Roosevelt's Message to General Manager of Corporation Here To Inspire Honoring Navy Hero.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—America's effort to lift itself out of "the greatest depression ever known" was praised today by Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour in ceremonies attending the unveiling of a statue of the Marquis de Rochambeau.

The statue of the French naval hero of the American war for independence was unveiled with the reading of a message from President Roosevelt to President Lebrun in which tribute was paid to the memory of the Marquis.

M. Paul-Boncour read a message from the French president in response containing expressions of friendship and then in a speech lauded the American executive's "courage and determination."

"At a time when so many attacks are being made on the difficult task," said the foreign minister, "I feel the need and the sense of duty of saluting the recovery effort attempted by the chief of the American Confederation and to say I admire the vitality, endurance and energy of the people of the United States in showing their effort to surmount the greatest and most dramatic crisis they ever have known."

therefore be prepared to play at three clubs or three hearts if South has not adequate spade support.

4—A direct slam try, of course, since two spades would be sufficient for game.

5—Another slam try. Mrs. Culbertson, having been asked to bid, insisted, she would have no reason to bid again unless she considered that by showing support for South's club suit she might make it possible for him to bid a slam.

6—This, of course, is a conventional bid, showing, in this case, three aces. It requires a response.

7—Mrs. Culbertson cannot bid five no-trump because she has no ace; but since she has the kings of all three bid suits, she knows her partner to have three aces, which limits the trick-taking possibilities of East and West to the one missing ace.

8—This pass is automatic. South knows that Mrs. Culbertson either lacks the missing ace or the king of one of the bid suits, or that she fears the loss of the queen of spades if her holding happens to include the ace and king of spades and the kings of hearts and clubs.

In any case South cannot supply whatever strength Mrs. Culbertson feels that the hand lacks, and is satisfied with the small slam.

The play was quite interesting. The king of diamonds was opened, and Mrs. Culbertson won with the dummy's ace and led a spade, which East won. Another diamond forced Mrs. Culbertson to use her six of spades and another spade lead revealed that the adverse trumps were divided 4-1.

Since it would be impossible to draw trumps and also establish a suit by ruffing in dummy, Mrs. Culbertson was forced to use the dummy's spades as the long trump suit and her own for ruffing purposes. She led a heart to the ace and ruffed dummy's last diamond with her last trump. She now led over to a club and played the higher card of nine of spades, clearing the suit. On these leads she discarded two hearts, and was left with nothing but high hearts and clubs.

It is worthy of note in the bidding that there was no jump bid until after the stage had been set for a four no-trump bid, and yet every bid made after the first had been either a semi-force or a clear slam inference.

Such a wealth of information can be gained by players who are willing to delve beneath the surface, rather than accept any bid at merely its face value.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN FOR TRUCK FARMERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The agriculture department pointed today to truck crops as one phase of farming where the market outlook for 1934 "appears to be somewhat more favorable for producers" than it has been during the past two years.

The department said gross returns to truck growers this year were larger than a year ago and the "higher prices received for the late crops are likely to encourage expansion of acreage again in 1934."

This is true, agriculture officials said, despite the "marked tendency toward increased home and local gardening in and around towns and on farms." This situation, true for the past three seasons, was "even more pronounced in 1933."

Supplies of late cabbage, onions, Irish potatoes and sweet potatoes are considerably smaller this season, the department reported, and the carry-over of these crops is "expected to offer less competition to early 1934 spring-grown vegetables."

Acreage decreases during the year in asparagus, beans, beets, cabbage, cantaloupes, cauliflower, celery, cucumbers, lettuce, onions, peppers, tomatoes and watermelons were cited as reasons why more acreage will probably be planted to these crops in 1934.

The acreage planted to carrots, green peas and snap peas increased this year over last, while eggplant acreage remained stationary.

Although the cost of production of commercial truck crops showed a sharp decrease from 1929 until midsummer of 1933, the department found that transportation costs remained relatively unchanged, except "for that portion shipped via motor truck."

"As prices have declined to low levels," the department said, "these costs have taken an increasingly larger share of the returns on commodities shipped long distances. This reacts to the benefit of the growers nearest the market and, under such circumstances, the price for local produce of food supplies, both for home use and local sale, may be expected to continue."

Long's Name Again Put On Bridge at Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 7.—(AP)—With state highway police standing guard, workmen today began erecting new signs on the Red river bridge here, bearing the name of Senator Huey P. Long and Governor O. K. Allen, to replace those torn down and thrown into the river last Wednesday night by a band of unidentified citizens.

The state policemen at first closed the bridge to vehicular traffic, but later allowed pedestrians as the big billboards were hoisted into place. They were almost identical with the destroyed ones, and again announced the structure would be known as the "Long-Allen bridge."

Vanderbilt Cup Play Begins TodayWith Augusta Team as Entrant

By TOM O'NEIL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Rivalry of systems will be pronounced in the annual contract bridge tournament for the Vanderbilt cup, beginning tomorrow and ending Tuesday.

Three quartets, out of 20 entered in this, the annual blue ribbon competition of the game, have demanded that they be seeded No. 1 or No. 2. P. Hal Sims with Edward Hynes Jr. opposite him and Harold S. Vanderbilt, donor of the trophy, and Waldemar Von Zedtwitz as other members of the team, will defend the cup. A Sims team won it last year with the same lineup except that Willard S. Kara was the partner of Sims. Vanderbilt and Von Zedtwitz will use the Vanderbilt Club convention.

Ely Culbertson will try to win the cup with his favorite partner, Theodore A. Lightner, and Mrs. Culbertson opposite a new Culbertson player, Albert H. Morehead.

Oswald Jacoby, David Burnstine, Howard Schenken and Michael T. Gottlieb are a new formidable combination who have united to expound their own methods as well as to compete. Jacoby and Burnstine were once of the "four horsemen" with Sims, Jacoby, Schenken and Gottlieb all have played on Culbertson teams at various times.

Sidney S. Lentz, once vanquished by Culbertson in a test of systems, will play with Charles H. Lochridge, B. Jay Becker and S. Garton Churchill.

Augusta, Ga.—Billy Barrett, Whitner L. Cary, Don Daniel, Mrs. J. I.

Daniel.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—K. D. MacMillan, Charles M. Epstein, Howard H.

Porter, Jack Simons.

Chicago—M. S. Reilly, A. B.

Brown, Daniel Smith, Ben Fain.

A qualifying round tomorrow will reduce the field to 16 teams. Knockout rounds Thursday, Friday and Saturday will determine two final first quartets. The final round will be 100 boards.

STRIKE PICKETS EVADe FARMERS

Iowa Guardsmen Not To Be Called Despite Burn- ing of Bridge.

By the Associated Press.
Tensions continued in farm strike centers of the middle west and minor disturbances were reported in eastern industrial areas as Recovery Administration Johnson yesterday asked farmers to give the administration's program a chance.

Anti-strike farmers armed with baseball bats and clubs escorted roadblocks north of Sioux City, Iowa, in an unsuccessful attempt to locate pickets. None was found, even at James, where the strike blockade had been the most effective.

Despite the burning of two railroad bridges Monday and other acts of violence, Sheriff William Tice at Sioux City said he would not request Governor Clyde Herring to call national guard troops unless conditions become more serious.

Farm strike pickets extended their activities in Kandiyohi county, where requests of farm leaders and closed schools were reported. In Wisconsin, where strikers asked elevators, creameries, shipping associations and stock buyers to join the movement.

Picket lines were re-established in south-central Wisconsin. In this region the purpose of the strike was announced as "peaceful persuasion." In Adams county, where strikers were seeking the identity of men who severely beat a one-armed truck driver who was taking a load of cream to market.

Eight men were arrested in Manitowish county, Wisconsin, after they had stopped and damaged a truck. But at Appleton, Walter M. Singer, milk strike leader, was shouted down when he tried to address a meeting of 1,500 farmers.

Governor Tom Berry, of South Dakota, declared that although he doubted that the farm strike would accomplish its purpose, he will not interfere as long as strike activities are conducted lawfully.

Additional trouble developed in the industrial east. Three employees of the United States department of agriculture were stoned near Scranton, where a strike was called by the United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, a rival to the United Mine Workers.

Three hundred more silk workers struck at the Royal Weaving Company plant at Pawtucket, R. I., making the total now out to 3,700 and making the walkout 100 per cent.

COMPLIANCE CHIEF GETS 28 COMPLAINTS OF NRA VIOLATIONS

W. L. Mitchell, NRA compliance director for Georgia, said Tuesday that he had received 28 complaints of violations of the NRA code in the state.

Most of these, he said, came from employers alleging non-compliance with hour and wage agreements in retail, lumber, filling station and drugstore codes. Others allege unfair competition.

A legal adviser, to be named later, will decide if the charges are justified. If so, Mr. Mitchell will seek an adjustment. As a last resort the complaints will be sent to Washington.

PAPER PULP PLANT IS GIVEN $105,000

Studies, costing of paper and studies of the cellulose from young pine as a base for the manufacture of the various forms of rayon. The funds will also enable changes in the present setup of the mill to be made, which will provide more efficient utilization of the same.

The means now at our disposal will open a new chapter in retail paper manufacture in the United States, just as important and starting as has already been demonstrated in the matter of newsprint.

For the past 15 years Mr. Garvin and I have labored side by side for the economic independence of the United States and for the past five years I have been associated in an advisory capacity with the industrial committee of Savannah. It is a great happiness to me that these relationships are to be continued.

PAPER PULP PLANT GOES TO COMMITTEE

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 7.—Governor Eugene Talmadge Tuesday signed a contract leasing the paper pulp plant at Savannah to the Georgia Industrial Development Committee.

The contract runs until January 1, 1936, and calls for payment of $1 a year by the committee.

Dr. Charles H. Herty, noted chemist, has been experimenting at the plant for several years on a process for making paper out of Georgia pine. The committee decided to take over the plant and continue the experiments after the governor vetoed a section of

Post-Repeal Lineup Of Wet, Dry States

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(UP)—More states are ready to sell hard liquor the moment repeal goes into effect than permitted such sale before prohibition, according to a United Press survey.

Twenty-eight states are officially dry, and 19 are wet. New Hampshire will permit sale of liquor containing up to 6 per cent alcohol when prohibition is repealed. Of the dry states, North Carolina and Ohio voted on the prohibition issue today. In other dry states special sessions of the legislatures are planned, which may result in repeal of the state dry laws.

In Alaska, the District of Columbia, the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, the Volstead act will remain in full force, according to a ruling by Attorney-General Homer Cummings until congress enacts a model liquor control law, expected in January.

Following is a list of dry and wet states, New Hampshire omitted:
DRY: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia.

Two cities vote for own utilities

TWO CITIES VOTE FOR OWN UTILITIES

By the Associated Press.
Proposals to build municipal electric light systems or additions to city utilities were rejected in Hartford, Conn., and in Youngstown, Ohio.

In Hartford, the city council voted 10-4 to reject a proposal to build a municipal electric light system and to acquire and operate city-owned utilities. Akron also was voting against municipal ownership and a city manager.

In Youngstown, Ohio, the proposal to issue $500,000 worth of bonds to buy a municipal power distribution system, the negative vote led by approximately four to three.

Retains from 30 of San Francisco's 912 school issues leads today issues providing $12,095,000 for the city water distribution system, $6,308,000 for the erection of a power house and transmission line to provide sale of power from the Hetchy Hetchy water project, $3,500,000 for raising the height of a Hetchy Hetchy dam, and $200,000 for improving the municipal airport.

The bond issues are all conditioned upon grants of 30 per cent for labor and material from the federal public works administration.

Columbus, Ohio, voted on whether to build a $1,030,000 addition to the existing municipal power plant, which would increase the city's generating power field, but returns were greatly delayed.

HAYS RETURNS HOME FROM BERLIN TRIAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(UP)—Arthur Garfield Hays came home today from the Berlin retributing fire trial and said four of the five defendants are innocent.

He will not discuss fairness of the trial, he said, until after a verdict is reached, but added he is confident of the Dutch defendant—Marius Van Der Lubbe—is guilty.

Hays represented a committee of international lawyers at the trial as an observer. He said his position there was "comfortable but apprehensive."

DEMOCRATS GAIN CONTROL OF CITIES

Lose New York and Cleveland But Overturn G. O. P. in Pittsburgh.

By the Associated Press.
Democrats lost control of mayoral posts in two of the country's largest cities, New York and Cleveland, yesterday, but made off-setting gains in other cities.

Florence H. LaGuardia, independent republican who ran on a fusion ticket, won in New York city by a large plurality.

William McKain, young democrat, had a good lead in early returns over S. H. Hertzman, republican, in Pittsburgh, but was defeated by mayor of Pittsburgh.

Democrats made striking gains in up-state New York; Buffalo elected a democratic mayor for the first time since 1914; Rochester went democratic for the first time in 30 years; Poughkeepsie, nearest city to the home of President Roosevelt, named a democrat for the first time in four years; Cortland went democratic for the first time since its incorporation 83 years ago.

In Jamestown, a 34-year-old newspaper reporter, Leon F. Roberts, unopposed Samuel A. Carlson, who has been mayor 24 years.

There was a considerable overturn on both sides in smaller cities.

In Connecticut, the democrats were overturned at Hartford and Bridgeport. In the latter city, Jasper McLevy, a socialist, went in with a majority of the city council. It was the first time a socialist had been elected to a mayoralty in Connecticut.

Referring to the farm revolt, he said, "Well, these are the influences that want you to revolt against NRA—against the president's entire recovery program. What do they offer you in place of it? They offer you nothing but exploitation. They delight in the attitude of some farmers that they are all going to be pulled down separately."

"It helps them in their fight against any effort of this nation to act as one man to pull itself out of this depression. It helps them in their cynical belief that they can always play the farmers for a sucker."

"That is not the way to support a great leader in a heroic fight against the most dreadful enemy that ever beset a nation. The way to do that is to follow a proved leader who has won by going to the primary cause for you—to help him to win."

He said that he was going to be pulled down separately.

MALCONTENTS ASSAILED

ST. PAUL, Nov. 7.—(UP)—Condemning "malcontents" and cheap politicians, General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, today appealed to farmers and businessmen to support the NRA and to "give the president a chance."

Johnson said that the NRA is a business and professional organization, not a political party, and that the agricultural adjustment act is too slow. Johnson told more than a thousand business and civic leaders in a luncheon address, "they are blocking recovery."

"Look well at these malcontents," he warned. "Find out if they ever did anything to help. Find out if they can be expected to be loyal supporters. Ask if they were leaders in the great depression of 1929. Ask if they were the ones who advocated doing nothing for agriculture the last year when agriculture sank to its lowest ebb."

Give the plan a chance to work. Who did as much for agriculture in as short a time as President Roosevelt? Give him a chance."

General Johnson likened the NRA and the AAA to Siamese twins, in appealing for support and co-operation of the country.

"The truth is," he said, "the NRA and the AAA are the same thing. We can't succeed if the AAA fails and the AAA can't succeed if the NRA fails. The best way to help industry is to help the farmer and the best way to help the farmer is to help industry."

The farmer, he said, can do this by supporting the NRA and making it successful, not by "listening to chiselers and small-time politicians."

The farm loan job has been much harder than mine," he added. "It is just getting into its stride. You are going to feel the effects of it out here very shortly. Wheat is not so hard to raise and live stock are the laggards."

"The Federation of Labor reports the NRA this week increased purchasing power 20 per cent. No one looking into the figures of the agricultural department the last 10 years can doubt this is going to boost the prices of all farm products. It is certain to act in dairy, meats and poultry products. If you want prices of these products to go down, kill off the NRA and let pay rolls decline."

"If you want to boost the NRA, you knock the other down."

"I do not know there has been a lag in farm prices. I do know when industrial prices were lagging, farm prices were shooting up, but now industrial prices are going a little ahead of farm prices."

"You can't put 4,000,000 back to work without increasing industrial costs. I do not believe there is a farmer in this country who would advocate turning those 4,000,000 men back on the streets as a method of reducing those costs."

"That isn't what the farmer is complaining about. He complains because his own prices have not recently come up faster than he thinks they ought to."

"Some people might say it is not the business of the NRA to put farm prices up—that is the business of the AAA—and in a sense that would be right. But as Secretary Wallace says, if there is anything certain in the tricky science of economics, it is that farm income and total pay rolls in this country go up and down together."

Admitting there had been "chiseling, gouging and profiteering under the Blue Eagle," Johnson pointed out that the presidential exemption under the retail code extending to the population of 2,500 or less from adhering to the code, which he said, "eliminated price gouging in rural districts."

Revenue Department Will Keep Up Warfare Against Illicit Whisky.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(UP)—The Volstead act and the Jones law may fall with repeal, but that will not lighten the lot of the moonshiner and the bootlegger.

Since repeal first was imposed on alcoholic beverages drastic penalties have been provided for those who sought to evade them. A stable chapter of American history might be written about the efforts to abolish the illicit manufacture of liquor.

When the Volstead act was passed the penalties, purposely, were made low in the hope that enforcement might be easier. The maximum penalty was fixed at one year in jail. Lighter sentences were provided for transportation, sale or possession.

These penalties failed to prevent bootlegging and soon were found to be inadequate. Prosecutors resorted to the conspiracy laws, carrying with them a maximum penalty of two years in jail and fines up to $10,000.

When the difficulties of proving conspiracy became apparent prosecutors attempted to resort to the old internal revenue laws and the laws against smuggling. The courts as a rule, however, found that such offenses came under the prohibition laws, the Volstead act having superseded them.

Congress then passed the so-called Jones law and ten law, which allowed penalties of up to five years in jail and a $10,000 fine for commercial violators. This caused resentment in many parts of the country. Law enforcement officials found it difficult to obtain convictions.

With repeal prosecutions again will be under the internal revenue laws, with their heavy penalties. Law enforcement officials believe that the repeal of the Volstead act will be a thing of the past.

In addition the old Webb-Kenyon act prohibiting the transportation of alcoholic beverages from one state to another will again be operative. Likewise will the Reed amendment, which prohibits interstate shipment of liquor advertising in any form.

OHIO OVER 2 TO 1
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 7.—(UP)—Ohio turned its back upon prohibition today in the first balloting in which the women have participated in the prohibition as a statewide question.

The state that gave birth to the Women's Christian Temperance Union and to the Anti-Saloon League in the latter part of the nineteenth century, apparently gave repeal a majority of at least 600,000 votes.

With 6,778 precincts of the 8,855 total reported, the count was 1,054,999 for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and 456,901 against.

It was in Ohio that Wayne B. Wheeler, first national prohibition officer, the fight to make the nation dry; where printing presses sent broadsheets throughout the world calling for the abolition of intoxicating liquor; where the World Association Against Alcoholism was nurtured.

PENNSYLVANIA IS WET BY HUGE MAJORITY
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—(UP)—Prohibition's foes raced far ahead in the first round of the repeal election tonight as rural regions gave unexpected support to the overwhelming vote of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Repeal won in 1,512 districts—approximately one-fifth of the commonwealth's 7,925—against 300,466 votes for repeal and 92,722 against.

The 1,280 districts in Philadelphia and one of the 941 in Allegheny, where Pittsburgh is counted, are by repeal forces to give the majority. The efforts to thrust the eighteenth amendment from the constitution.

In only six of Pennsylvania's 67 counties did early returns show the drys in the lead. These were Armstrong, Centre, Cumberland, Forest, Fulton and Indiana.

UTAH SEALS DOOM OF 18TH AMENDMENT
SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Nov. 7.—(UP)—With a quarter of Utah's electoral districts related, the repealists had a lead of nearly 15,000 votes. The figures, which included returns from the heavy dry vote in southern Utah and other districts, showed the following returns from 302 of the state's 385 districts:

For repeal, 36,165.
Against repeal, 22,073. The state constitution to permit the sale of 3.2 per cent beer was keeping pace with the returns.

Repeal won from the same number of precincts showed:
For state dry law modification, 14,422.

SOUTH CAROLINA VOTES TO KEEP PROHIBITION
COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 7.—(UP)—By a narrow margin, South Carolina today voted against prohibition repeal. Upon the basis of unofficial returns from more than two-thirds of the state, Romulus Reese, state manager for the Association Against the Eighteenth Amendment, conceded defeat for the repeal cause tonight, although the unofficial returns showed the drys leading by only a slim majority.

With returns received from 850 of 1,220 precincts, the vote stood: For repeal, 31,450; against repeal, 33,128. The dry lead was 1,558 votes.

Repeal's strength was shown principally in Charleston and Richland (Columbia) counties. Other large city counties, Greenville, Spartanburg and Anderson, gave dry majorities.

Most of the returns unaccounted for were reported in small rural boxes, and it was expected that they would tend to swell the dry lead.

NORTH CAROLINA VOTES OVERWHELMINGLY DRY
CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 7.—(UP)—North Carolina voters today decisively rejected the proposal for repeal of the 18th amendment, and thereby recorded the state as the first in the Union definitely to break the anti-prohibition wave.

With unofficial returns compiled from 1,432 precincts of 1,831, the count stood: For repeal 107,793, against 290,006.

The technical question voted on was "convention or no convention." As a result, no convention will be held, and the delegates elected by the various counties will not assemble to cast their votes.

A tabulation shortly after midnight showed only 14 of the 100 counties reporting a lead for repeal. Returns from eight states were incomplete.

Dates Tell Story Of U. S. Prohibition

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(UP)—Dry crusaders usually date the start of the American prohibition movement from an "essay on the effects of ardent spirits upon the human mind and body," written by Dr. Benjamin Rush, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, in 1785.

Prior to this, however, there were a number of restrictive laws passed by the colonies beginning with the Maryland statute of 1642 fining drunkards. In 1648 Indians held a temperance meeting in the St. Lawrence valley and in 1738 Oglethorpe, founder of the colony of Georgia, prohibited importation of liquor.

Other milestones in the prohibition movement follow:
1800—First temperance society formed.
1813—First state society formed, Massachusetts.
1830—First national society.
1832—Spirit ration for soldiers abolished.
1833—First local option, Georgia.
1835—First national temperance convention.
1836—First total abstinence society.
1837—First legislative document, bill to prohibit sale and transportation in Massachusetts.
1847—Supreme court decided nothing in constitution to prevent state from repealing prohibition traffic, first national legal decision.
1851—First state prohibition, Maine.
1850—Ohio passes anti-saloon law.
1856—Temperance publishing house formed, later distributed more than 1,000,000 pages of propaganda.
1860—Repeal of national prohibition convention, prohibition party formed.
1871—First prohibitionist elected, Massachusetts legislature.
1872—Congressional bill, prohibition for District of Columbia, passed in committee.
1876—First congressional joint prohibition amendment.
1874—W. C. C. U. organized.
1881—Kansas effects first constitutional state prohibition.
1890—Anti-Saloon League formed.
1901—Anticentennial (saloon) law for military establishment incorporated in laws for Alaska.
1890—First temperance measure passed congress, provided instruction effect alcohol in federal schools.
1887—Congress defeated bill prohibiting alcoholic beverages.
1890—Rhode Island becomes first state to repeal constitutional prohibition.
1890—First prohibition party candidate elected to congress.
1893—South Carolina instituted state liquor monopoly and dispensary system.
1901—Anticentennial (saloon) law for military establishment incorporated in laws for Alaska.
1902—Prohibition for certain Pacific islands.
1903—Saloon in basement of national capital abolished.
1906—Liquor traffic among Indians outlawed.
1907—Prohibition zones around government buildings.
1908—Liquor barred from United States mails.
1913—Webb-Kenyon law prohibiting transportation of liquor in dry states.
1914—First congressional majority for a dry bill.
1917—Reed amendment prohibiting transportation of liquor advertisements into dry states. 18th amendment submitted to states.
1918—Mississippi ratifies, first state war-timidity prohibition order until after demobilization.
1919—Nebraska ratifies 18th amendment, 36th state; Volstead act passed; vetoed by president; repeal of Volstead act and 18th amendment.
1920—18th amendment effective; supreme court upholds constitutionality of Volstead act and 18th amendment.
1923—New York repeals enforcement act making it impossible use state courts liquor cases.
1924—Massachusetts ratifies state enforcement act.
1929—Drastic Jones five-and-ten law passed to aid enforcement.
1930—Repeal of first prohibition house test.
1931—Congressional polls indicate wet gain.
1932—Beck Linticum wet measure defeated by smallest dry majority since prohibition; senate turns down beer proposals; resolutions for repeal introduced in congress; 32 beer bills passes house.
1933—Beer sale legal; repeal amendment passed; submitted to states; ratified.

Some estimates run even higher than the figures given above. The association against the prohibition amendment estimated that in the years ending with 1931 the government lost $10,988,000,000 in revenues, basing the estimate on a computation of the consumption of illicit beverages.

The expenditure of these funds through the law enforcement agencies form one of the most interesting chapters in the prohibition experiment. Thousands of prohibition agents working under the treasury department and later under the justice department, were augmented with the services of the customs bureau, including the border patrol, the coast guard and state and municipal police.

Small Violator First.
Early efforts at enforcement were directed at the small law violator. Agents, recruited from some of other branches of the government service but more often from minor political figures in local areas, raided speakeasies after speakeasies.

Enforcement took on a lively and picturesque aspect. Aces in the enforcement service

BARGAIN IN LOVE

BY JANE DIXON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Harry Bume, Sue Santry's employer, takes her along to help Mathilda Webster, his secretary, when he goes to Paris on business, and Sue and Matty are so busy they see nothing of the brilliant French capital. The first evening of the return voyage to New York aboard the Collins, Jeffrey Randall saves Sue from pitching overboard in a sudden storm. Confronting Sue in Jeff's presence, Mrs. Bume accuses her of being her husband's companion in Paris. The next evening, with a demonstration of love, Jeff asks Sue to marry him, explaining that in seven days he will be 27 years old and if he is not married then he loses the Randall fortune to his cousin, Beatrice and Cyril, under the will of his Uncle Griswold (Grizzly). Sue agrees, but she tells Jeff that her widowed mother married Griswold Henscher and that she has been sending every spare cent home so her stepfather will not take Tommy, her younger brother, out of school and put him to work. Jeff, who is a millionaire, agrees to marry Sue, but she is unconvinced by a marble bust of Uncle "Grizzly," which mysteriously becomes dislodged from a wall niche as she is descending the stairway. Disregarding the doctor, she motors to the country with Jeff and they are married. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

"But—but—" For once Mathilda's confusion outstripped her gibes. "Matty, you can't—I'll follow you—" Sue's fingers a vice pressing into Mathilda's arm.

"Look here, my girl," Mathilda said acidly. "You've got to take a hitch in your courage. No one's going to lose marble busts at you tonight. If they do, Jeffrey will be here to see you aren't bowled over."

"Jeff will not be here," Sue's lips, tight with protest. "If he is, you and I are leaving. We can go to a hotel. Surely there is another room in this house Jeff can occupy. I refuse to prolong this farce. There's no need of it, now that we're married."

"There's no reason," Sue turning the passion of her protest toward Jeffrey. "We're not married—really. We've not been through some stupid motions. I'm not hurrying myself into the arms of any man, not even for Tommy, not for my mother, not for—Oh God! What's the use. The whole thing is a joke. A horrible, revolting joke."

Jeffrey stood still for a moment, his feet apart as though he braced himself against a blow. Dazed signals flared behind the granite that was his face, rough-hewn, jutting. "Better turn in, Sue," he said. "If you should need me, I'll be in Mathilda's room. For the benefit of the servants or anyone who might be curious, your head is troubling you. Mathilda's looking after you."

Sue, witheringly: "Don't bother about my head. I'll take care of it, or what's left of it, after your relatives stop trying to knock it off my shoulders. As for the marriage joke, it ceases to amuse me. The sooner it is ended, the sooner I shall be able to enjoy a real laugh."

"What was she saying? Why was she flapping herself with bitter words, hurling them at Jeffrey?" "Ring for the maid," Jeffrey rapped out the order. "Ask her to bring ice and compresses. If you don't need them, they'll make convincing props. I'll arrange tomorrow to be called to Mexico."

The outer door closed. Not too gently.

Dawn oozed through the windows, damp and chill. Sue, moving cautiously. She must not disturb Mathilda. Out of bed, across the thick pile of the carpet as softly as a cat stalking a bird, and she was in the living room of the suite.

The night had been interminable, without the healing balm of a snatch of sleep. Forced inaction, while her mind spun crazily, had cramped her body and soul. She had insisted that Mathilda's comfortable bulk close beside her was tangible. All else, illusion!

Jeffrey was leaving her. Jeffrey was going to Mexico. To those miles he had told her about on the ship. Tomorrow, the next day, maybe today, Jeffrey would be gone. Inexorably.

Well, why not? What was the bargain? He did not contract to remain with her once they were married. A month, two months, three months some place, some remote worthy a Randall, no doubt, and she'd be free. Free and independent. Free to come and go as she chose. Paris, the Riviera, Egypt. She had always imagined Spain must be the most romantic country in the world—Moorish Spain. She'd take Tommy with her.

But she couldn't be leaving Tommy to the four corners of the earth. Tommy would be in school, preparing to be a lawyer like his father. Preparing to do things. Big things. Honorable things.

She'd have to travel the gilded way alone, or share it with strangers. Oh, she'd meet plenty of fascinating strangers. She'd be gay and giddy and extravagant—and a little wild. The enigmatic but, oh so alluring Mrs. Santry Randall. No, Mrs. Sue Santry. The Randall must be dropped. Wiped out so that not even an imprint of the pencil on this page of her life remained.

Trunks. Three of them. Over by the windows. She hadn't noticed them before. Why had they been left out here? Three trunks filled with beautiful expensive clothes. The kind of clothes she had dangled before shop windows coveting ever since she had come to work in the city.

Her mind raced again. Alarming. She'd have to stop it. Stop mind. She'd try to cheat me. You can't cheat me. I have a right to those trunks, to everything in them. I'm paying. I'll go on paying. Oh—what have I done—you've got to stop torturing me—

Sue, shuddering, hiding her face in the pillows of the couch. Conviction stared at her across her shoulder.

Laughed in her face. Shrieked with laughter. She could not stop her ears against those shrieks: "You don't want the clothes in the trunks. Now that you have them, you don't want them. They're so many rags. Paris, Egypt, Spain? You don't want to go. You want to stay here. You can't. Here is not in the bargain. Fool! Thought you could buy happiness, did you? It's not for sale. You win it. You earn it. It's in your heart. Your heart goes with you, no matter what you wear, no matter how far you go. Stronger than fate, are you? Ha, ha—your loss. You lose Jeff! He's leaping to her feet, fleeing into the room where Mathilda's comfortable bulk offered a mound of refuge. Under the covers. The shrieks died away into ghost echoes. Sue slept the sleep of utter exhaustion.

Ten o'clock in the morning. Sue was so still, so white and lifeless against the pillow that Mathilda became uneasy.

"Susie," Mathilda leaned over the bed, gently shook Sue's shoulders, which twitched spasmodically under her touch. "Wake up. It's getting on toward noon."

The slim figure in the bed flung itself over and omitted a low moan. Mathilda nodded her head.

"All in," she murmured. "Can't blame the pillow that Mathilda became uneasy."

"Matty," Sue started up in bed her eyes wide and haunted. "Matty, where's Jeff?" Mathilda thought Sue's face against the pillow could not be written, but now she knew she had been mistaken.

"Jeffrey's gone. About an hour ago."

"You mean he's—he's not coming back?" Lips could be paler than cheeks. Pale and bluish.

"He didn't say."

"But Matty, he can't go—not this way!" Sue implored.

"What do you mean, he can't? You want him to go, don't you? The way you carried on last night you'd think he was trying to kidnap you or something. His own wife!" Mathilda snorted at disapproval.

"You don't know. Can't you see it was being forced on him, here in these rooms, closed in together. It was shameful. I couldn't bear it."

"You don't have to bear it. He's gone, I tell you. He left word about your mother. Said you'd probably want to see her today. You're to take a cab if you like. Conner is to drive. Conner is Jeffrey's man and won't talk. The drawing account in your name is in the National State bank. You're to draw what you want."

"Very well," Sue wriggled out of bed. Her body was sore. As though it had been rolled roughly, and pounded. "I'll be ready in a few minutes. But I'm not taking a Randall car. I'm going by train."

"That will be best," Mathilda agreed. "Then you can stay as long as you want. You won't have a chauffeur to worry about. While you're gone I'll attend to a few of my own affairs that need weeding out."

Twenty minutes later when Sue emerged into the living room, Mathilda put down her paper to exclaim. "What's the idea of the old rose sports wear? I hussy up all the new gawags. They're in those two closets off the bedroom."

"I prefer this," The beige coat, with the white stars from the parson's garden guttering to ash in the fur, was across her arm.

"Well, you folks will certainly be glad to see you, all rumped and forlorn," Mathilda said.

Beatrice Randall was just outside the elevator, consulting with Persons, the butler, when Sue and Mathilda stepped out.

Morehead Feared Lost To Georgia For Yale Game

'No, No, No,' Says Mr. Stegeman, And He Should Know

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 7.—"Oh, no," said Mr. Herman Jerome Stegeman, "Oh, no, no, no."

Mr. Stegeman had just been asked by one of those inquisitive young men if he did not think the Yale boys would prove play in the hands of the boys from the red clay hills of Georgia.

In fact, Mr. Stegeman went on saying "no" just like a witness in a breach of promise suit. He couldn't find anything affirmative in his vocabulary.

The Georgia boys were on the field getting ready for the game at the Yale Bowl on Saturday, when some 60,000 people, more or less, are expected to come and peer at one of the undefeated teams in the United States as it meets the Blue of Yale.

Mr. Stegeman happens to be the scout who has brought back the news from New Haven for some years. And on his reports the Bulldogs have gone to work and won from Yale four times in the past five years, three of them having come in the last trio of years in which the two teams have met.

Hence the attentiveness with which Mr. Stegeman's remarks on Yale are greeted here in Athens. He is the greatest authority on Yale. In fact, Mayor Lon Dudley has created a place on the city council for Mr. Stegeman.

He is the official statistician on Yale for the city of Athens. This week he has done nothing but go about the streets saying "no, no, no, no." The people here think the Bulldogs are "in." Mr. Stegeman is countering that. Hence, if any visitors to the city encounter a man walking along saying "no, no, no," it is merely Mr. Stegeman at work. And not at all balmy.

THEY'LL RUN BACK NO KICK-OFFS.

It seems that Yale has finally perfected a defense for one of Georgia's favorite plays in the bowl. One of the best plays in bygone years was to take the kick-off and run it either all the way back or almost all the way back. As I recall, Austie Downes ran one all the way back in 1930.

But this year Yale has a defense for that play. The defense is a young fellow named Clark Curtin, who plays tackle.

"All his kick-offs in the Dartmouth game went over the line," said Mr. Stegeman, "and one of them went all the way up to about the thirtieth row in the bowl," said the modern Leatherstocking of the football wilderness.

Mr. Stegeman found the New Haven Bulldog to be somewhat stronger than in 1931, when the Athens Bulldog last played him.

I have an idea that the 1933 Athens Bulldog is superior to the Athens Bulldog of 1931. But that is yet undetermined in some of our better minds. The Saturday game will demonstrate the correctness or incorrectness of the theory.

At any rate, it is one of the big games of the east. The Georgia game is a program game this year and rates with any the Yale team plays. Which is but natural. When a fellow has licked another fellow four times in five tries there is nothing else to do but admit he must be quite good.

At any rate, Georgia is getting ready for the second of her three great intercollegiate games, and goes east as one of the nation's six undefeated teams.

And I hope the boys will cease pointing with pride to the south's intercollegiate victories as if they were something unusual.

MOTT FINDS PRO BALL EASIER.

While shivering on the side lines this afternoon watching the Red Devils in blue shirts demonstrate the Yale formations to the varsity, the roving eye of this correspondent caught sight of an approaching figure.

It was Buster Mott, Georgia star of last year, hobbling along on a broken leg and a sound cane. He has just returned from Green Bay, Wis., where he suffered a broken leg while playing with the Packers in a professional football game. Mott hopes to get back in the game in about three weeks with the Philadelphia team. He likes professional football.

"It's easier than the college game," he said. "There isn't much running with the ball. It's mostly kicking and passing. And in the pro game you don't have to worry about the other fellow. You tend to your own assignments and forget all about the other fellow."

"The blocking is better because they put two men on a man, instead of one. You don't get as tired and you have a good time. Although the work is hard."

Mott was going well for the Packers until he received a broken leg. And while accidents will and often do happen any time, I could not help but reflect that Buster Mott had no legs broken in college ball. Even though the pro game is easier.

NEWS FROM LUMPKIN AND THE BOYS.

Mott played against "Father" Lumpkin, the Tech star of 1928, in two games. And what a kick he gives in his story of "Father" and his play.

"Lumpkin is rated the best blocker in pro ball," said Mott. "He still plays without a headgear and without any hip pads. And is he tough? Why, he blocks out his own man and then goes on down and gets two or three more. He has learned how to shoulder block, and he is murder at it."

"When we played them we were out to get Lumpkin because we knew with him out they'd be easy. We won but we didn't get Lumpkin. They beat on him all afternoon but he was still in there at the finish, as strong as ever."

"I don't think you can hurt him. Herdis McCrary, who used to play at Georgia, told me once that in one game he accidentally kicked Lumpkin in the face so hard that it hurt his foot and that Lumpkin only looked up and said, 'Here, there, cut that stuff out.' What a blocker he is! He's the only man in pro football who doesn't use a headgear when blocking."

What a picture! This correspondent will always keep green the memory of Roy "Father" Lumpkin. When all is said and done, he was the most rugged player that has ever appeared in Dixie.

ROBERTS, STUMPY AND OTHERS.

Mott reported on Stumpy Thomason, another Tech player, as being rated one of the best call carriers in the pro league. Brooklyn, however, persists in using him as a blocking back.

Red Grange, says Mott, is also being used almost exclusively as a blocking back and is a great one. It seems a bit strange to find players such as Lumpkin,

MILLO STEINBORN FACES SANDOW'S 'FIND' TONIGHT

Cowboy and Indian Match on Card; Time Is 8:15 Tonight.

Two newcomers will appear in matches on the regular weekly wrestling card at the city auditorium tonight when Darna Ostapovich, the big Lithuanian champion, tackles Millo Steinborn, German strong man, in the main event, and Cowboy Jack Russell, huge youngster, never before in the semi-windup. The card will be opened by a short match at 8:15 o'clock.

Ostapovich and Russell are wrestling under the banner of none other than Billy Sandow, one of the outstanding figures in the wrestling business. Sandow will be remembered as the man who piloted Ed Strangler Lewis to a world's championship and much fame and fortune, and now he comes along with two men he confidently believes will gain the top in the game.

POWERFUL FOE. Ostapovich, tipping the beam at 220, is said to be a powerful and aggressive wrestler who can hold his own with the better of the world. He is young and knows plenty about the present-day mat tricks. Sandow is confidently pointing him for a match with Jimmy London, the present champion.

The big Lithuanian champ will have to step tonight if he is to continue his climb for the world's title, which he has won in the past. He is a veteran of the trade and is too smart to let this young fellow get the best of him. He specializes in a dreaded "bear hug" hold and has crushed many promising and ambitious wrestlers out of the picture with this hold. Once he applies this hold it's just too bad.

COWBOY-INDIAN.

The cowboy and Indian match should be a corker. Imagined as a contest between an Indian in a ring, Russell, who left the cattle ranges to become a wrestler, has made excellent progress. Tonight he is fighting it being the "last round-up" for the Indian, while the Big Chief plans a trip to the "happy hunting ground" for the cowboy. Anyway, it should be a good match with plenty of rough stuff. Marvin is noted here for his rough and tumble tactics.

Tickets for the matches will remain on sale at the Piedmont Hatters until 6 o'clock this afternoon when the auditorium boxoffice will open. Fans are urged to buy their tickets early in order to avoid the rush at the auditorium.

WOMEN TO BOWL IN PIN FEATURE ABBOTT, 'ROBBY' HERE SATURDAY

With two leagues of young women competing in scheduled play at Black's tonight, considerable interest will be centered on some of the matches, and in particular those in which some of the leading teams are involved.

The Gigolos, Gold Diggers, Tramps and Hopes, as the teams are designated in the Southern Railway Ladies' league, will offer well-balanced play as prevails each week with Misses Ridgely, Yeager, Fisher, Wooten, Kotes and many others showing marked improvement.

And in the Ladies' Commercial league, the Black's Bowling center and Independents are slated to up the Atlanta Journal and Candler Building Garage are scheduled and the Atlanta Paper Company and Mott Laundry team meet.

The Atlanta Journal and Candler Building Garage teams, though not leaders, are waging a real fight for second place and both teams will give the leaders much trouble.

The Columbia and Independent teams, leaders in the Mott Picture Duck Pin league, remain tied for the lead, as both teams won two games last night. The R. K. O. bowlers are the Columbia team, and the Independent team, which is the Columbia quint managed to emerge on top in two games.

Big games were bowled in the league by Helms, Morgan (who had one of the highest three-game sets of the league, a 328), Prince, Styles, Angier, Baird, Herbert, Lucy, Goldsmith, Swann, Stover, Marion, Allen, S. Laird, Porter and Bailey.

In the special match between the Atlanta Paper Company and the Gaylord Container Company, the Atlanta Paper Company were the winners by the best end of a 1,415 to 1,372 total.

Miss Bebe Bangert was high in three-game totals with 307, and Miss Dot Morris had a 296.

Former Lookout President Is Dead

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—J. Frank Harrison, 44, president of the Chattanooga Bottle & Glass Company, died today after a week's illness resulting from an ailing condition. He came to Chattanooga from Greensboro, N. C., in 1925 when he purchased the glass company. He was recently interested in the Chattanooga Baseball Company.

He declined to comment on the possibility of his re-election as president, but apparent absence of all opposition made it almost a foregone conclusion.

Noble Kizer To Fill Tough Role Saturday

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(AP)—At the head of a mighty football horde, one of the "seven mules" of Notre Dame's immortal "Four Horsemen" team, is coming back to the campus of the Golden Dome Saturday to fulfill the most embarrassing engagement in his life.

No football coach ever was confronted with a more delicate situation than that which will face Noble Kizer of Purdue, when he sends his undefeated Boilermakers against Notre Dame.

His closest friend in or out of football probably is heartily "Hunk" Anderson, the luckless coach of the downtrodden Ramblers of 1933, yet Kizer will come to Notre Dame Saturday to lead his team.

Ever since Notre Dame began its fall from the football pedestal, reports have been circulated that a new coach will replace Anderson. This fall, as the Ramblers met with defeat

Defense Looks Better For Auburn Game With Shouse Back.

By Jack Troy.

Coach Harry Robertson was humming a tune last night. He was heard, from time to time, to burst into song: "Oh, bury me on the lone prairie—e-e-e, but never on the Alabama plains."

Coach Robertson had no string accompaniment for his song, but he hopes to have improved defensive accompaniment for the Auburn game Saturday at the Lovelock Village.

Robertson, who will make a capable tenor if you are looking for a fourth at singing, explained that recent shifts in the Oglethorpe line are working out satisfactorily.

SHAW AT GUARD. Bull Shaw, the Decatur boy, is fitting in as a fine running guard. His running mate, McNeeley, is a battler. Both are sophomores—and willing.

Coach Robertson figures that the shuffling of Rickard from end to tackle will strengthen the line. Rickard will be paired with Darracott, an improved player.

The return of Rudy Shouse, veteran center, also is a big aid. Shouse is a very accurate passing pivot man and strong defensively. A broken hand has kept him out of the last two games.

Freeman, a sophomore end who has been improving at a fast rate, will pair with either McNamara or Reed Craven.

MITRICK STANDS OUT.

Oglethorpe scrimmaged against the freshmen, using Auburn plays, yesterday. Frank Mitrick, fullback, and R. Clark, halfback, looked good. Clark is regarded as the most consistent kicker on the squad and is also a good passer.

Coach Robertson has few offensive worries. All his trouble has evolved from that jig-saw puzzle called the line. He has been fitting round pegs in square holes, he believes, and hopes that the latest arrangement is the one to fit off on.

Eddie Anderson, Sam Leslie and Harry Wrens, and Frank Mitrick are the Auburn starting back field, with Clark, Phil Hildreath and Jack Harrison held in reserve.

HARRISON BACK. There is a chance that Harrison may start at halfback with Wren. But Coach Robertson isn't sure. Harrison has been out since the opening game with Newberry because of a broken ankle.

At any rate the defensive situation is much improved. And that is what the Petrels will depend upon for any kind of a showing against the strong Auburn eleven.

The Petrels aren't inclined to concede Auburn a comfortable lead for any kind of a showing against the strong Auburn eleven.

THREE DRIVERS IN RACES HERE

Almost simultaneously with the announcement of championship auto races at Lawson's Park here, three titleholders have made entry for the speed events Sunday, which will mark the close of the most successful racing season in the history of the track.

Dub McLeod, Matthews, N. C., who is North Carolina state champion and brother to Doug McLeod, of Patterson, N. J., who was a money winner in the Labor Day, Shorty Gingrich, Tampa, Fla., state champion, and Bill Chesterfield, Windsor, Canada, the Maple Leaf road race star, are the early entrants.

Meanwhile, in Georgia racing circles there is much talk of change of mounts from previous races. Scout Scarritt is angling to secure the entry of Pietro Alberti, Italian pilot, for his E-24, formerly driven by Redmond, while Redmond is practically assured of another mount to drive.

Alberti will be permitted to race in the feature event in the Scarritt mount, while a southern driver will be elected in the state championship and southern championship race as Alberti hails from Turin, Italy.

Chesterfield, passing through Atlanta, en route to Florida, stopped to make entry and is gunning for a car. It is thought that the wealthy Ambler of Philadelphia, may send in a car for the Canadian or some southern owner give the pilot a chance to ride a Georgia-owned racer.

Atlanta also is in the market for a first-string catcher, a second baseman and a first baseman. An outfielder or two also will be sought. Red Hollings, third baseman, and Buster Chatham, shortstop, are more than likely to meet with the approval of Abbott, since both had good seasons with the tail-end Crakers and also good records in the Coast league, where they played before coming here. Abbott managed Portland in that league and knows something of Chatham and Hollings.

At least two players who failed to do the Crakers any good last year are expected to go along with some cash, in deals that will strengthen the club. Spencer Abbott has a wide knowledge of the minor leagues and while Robinson is thoroughly familiar with the present roster and can supply Abbott with the names of players of the league of retention and those that are not.

Atlanta also is in the market for a virtually an entirely new pitching staff. A first-string pitcher, a second baseman and a first baseman. An outfielder or two also will be sought. Red Hollings, third baseman, and Buster Chatham, shortstop, are more than likely to meet with the approval of Abbott, since both had good seasons with the tail-end Crakers and also good records in the Coast league, where they played before coming here. Martin Announces Directors' Meeting.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 7.—(AP)—John D. Martin, president of the Southern association of baseball clubs, announced tonight that directors of the league would meet here Monday in their annual business session.

He declined to comment on the possibility of his re-election as president, but apparent absence of all opposition made it almost a foregone conclusion.

Anderson and Kizer have been close friends ever since Kizer first tried out for football. Diners for the Andersons at the Kizer household and for the Kizers at the home of the Andersons are nothing unusual. Lafayette, Ind., home of the Boilermakers, and South Bend, are only about 150 miles apart.

After defeat, the rumors settled on Kizer. Today, with the Purdue game close at hand, the gossip of a change in the Kizer's selection were at a crest.

On that "Four Horsemen" team, "Rip" Miller, whose Navy team beat back Notre Dame last week. So it was "Hunk" that really gave Kizer his start in football and that won't make it any easier for the Purdue coach Saturday.

Yale Remembers Him

Line Mainstay Injures Knee In Scrimmage

Bulldog Camp Shrouded in Gloom; Regulars Are Ragged.

By Ralph McCall.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 7.—Leroy Morehead, Georgia's brilliant guard, was injured in scrimmages here this afternoon, wrenching a knee, and is feared lost until the Tech game on November 25.

This added to the gloom engendered by the lethargic showing by the varsity on defense against the Yale plays as demonstrated by the Red Devils clad in the blue of Yale. Georgia meets Yale Saturday at New Haven.

"I don't see how Morehead can play at all in the Yale game nor against Auburn," said Harry Mehre tonight after the nighty lecture to the squad. "It is a severe loss with the Yale game coming up Saturday."

Georgia's capable trainer, Clarence Jones, said it would probably be two days before the extent of the knee injury was determined. There were no breaks in the knee. But tendons were pulled. Efforts were being made tonight to keep down the swelling and every possible move made to return him to the game as quickly as possible.

GREAT GUARD. Morehead is rated as one of the greatest guards in the game this year. He is especially valuable to the Georgia defense, which employs a six-man line. And requires capable linemen.

There was no need for a "bear story" out of Athens Tuesday. The team looked very, very slow and ragged against the Yale plays.

Mehre said Morehead was probably injured because the varsity seemed slow and careless in meeting the drive of the blue-clad Red Devils. He stopped the practice after Morehead was injured because of the team's slowness and apparent inability to turn on any steam.

The Georgia coaches were lower than a well digger doing a deep job at the conclusion of Tuesday's drill. Mehre was most disappointed. He had expected a let-down after the Florida game but the let-down was more than anticipated.

PEPPY EARLY. Looking on the sidelines, the Bulldogs seemed to have an unusual amount of zip and drive in the early workouts. They shrieked through the practice and seemed to be in the fact of the blue-clad Red Devils. He stopped the practice after Morehead was injured because of the team's slowness and apparent inability to turn on any steam.

The Blue team was using the Notre Dame offense, which Hunk Anderson used three years ago to murder Army. It involves a double shift in the backfield, the outside man shifting wide to go in and smash the end or the tail back. Or maybe go on through.

It puzzled the varsity no little. They were also slow and lacking in force. It seemed to me that this was to be expected, considering the fact that the Bulldogs have driven harder and with better success than any team in their conference.

They will likely bounce back to top. Or certainly by Thursday. But the team leaves Thursday on the long ride to New Haven.

It is my opinion that the Bulldogs will return to form. But there is no getting around the fact that the varsity has been slower than the blue shirts the Red Devils wore. Another scrimmage is slated for this afternoon. And a morning practice Thursday will see the Bulldogs pack for Yale.

WINOOKA LAST IN 4-HORSE RACE ON SLOW TRACK

Sergeant Byrne Romps Home First at Belmont Park.

By Orlo Robertson.
NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Winooka, winner of two straight races in Maryland, attempted to match his speed with three of the Metropolitan turf's most useful sprinters today but failed, finishing last, a badly beaten colt, in a four-horse field.

John Simonetti's Sergeant Byrne, a two-year-old, stepped home first in the six furlongs of the international speed test, feature of the United Hunt one-day meeting at Belmont Park.

The track was sloppy going and a cold, penetrating wind chilled a crowd of 5,000. The chestnut son of Stimulus, favored by the lightweight of 101 pounds, reeled off the three quarters of a mile in the fast time of 1:11 2-5, within two-fifths of a second of Winooka's best time in this country, and at the finish held a neck advantage over J. Simon Healy's Flying Heels.

Mrs. James M. Austin's Good Advice was only another neck to the rear in the blanket finish shot Sergeant Byrne almost out of the picture, trailing by more than four lengths.

The Australian had no excuse, unless it was the sloppy going and on the basis of his two fast races in Maryland he was made the even money choice, but not once from the time Sammy Remick shot Sergeant Byrne away in front of the quartet was Winooka, with Edgar Britt up, able to menace the leaders.

Sergeant Byrne was the outsider in the betting at 7 to 2 to earn the sweepstakes purse of $2,750. Flying Heels, winner of two of his three previous starts this year, was held at 18 to 5 while Good Advice was quoted at 16 to 5.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Alex Morrison says:

When golfers generally know more about the proper function of the left hand in swinging a club they'll give up the practice of pressing against the shaft with the left thumb.

Even at this time there are quite a few players bold enough to place their left thumb around the shaft.

However, these players seem rather uncertain about letting the thumb go all the way around the club.

Unless all pressure against the shaft by this thumb is eliminated the left hand and wrist cannot function properly.

The only way this can be done is by letting the thumb encircle the shaft.

Next—Hands Ahead of Club.

Firecrackers Play Benning Sunday

The Atlanta Firecrackers, a strong football team here, will meet the Fort Benning eleven Sunday afternoon in Fort Benning. Captain Charles Bedford, former Auburn player, and 200-pound tackle, will be in the line of the team.

Johnny Sims, University of Chattanooga; Justin Nix, Oglethorpe; Hoke Freeman, University school; Johnny Hadley, Tech High, and probably Ben Cherry, former Tech backfield star, will be in the starting lineup against the soldiers.

The Firecrackers defeated the Commodore Feds here last Sunday in a practice game, 12 to 2. The Firecrackers are undefeated this season.

Ole Miss Plans Varied Offensive

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Nov. 7.—(AP)—With Hutson, fullback, and Bart Harrington, regular wingman, still out of serious practice with injuries, University of Mississippi coaches were forging ahead today with plans to exhaust the Red and Blue offensive repertoire against Tennessee in Knoxville Saturday.

They figure Hutson will be ready to make a comeback at the line, and Curtis, Rodgers and Ginter will give them the speed necessary to skirt the ends, Ruby and Casper, quarters, will handle the punting and passing.

McAfees Defeat Hames by 6 to 0

A touchdown in the second quarter on a 12-yard dash off tackle enabled the Hames to beat the McAfees 6 to 0. Tuesday afternoon on the Madox Junior High field in the school football championship series.

Cotton scored for the winners and in addition to Reeves was outstanding. Northeast and Reynolds played best for the losers.

JACKETS FACE FLURRY WA PLAYS SCRIMMAGE

Loss of Any Man in Tech Line Weakens Team's Chances.

By Jimmy Jones.
John Wilcox, rugged young sophomore guard of the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets, will be able to play against Florida Saturday, but Bob Warner, the other guard who was injured in the game with Vanderbilt Saturday, hasn't the same chance.

Wilcox showed such rapid improvement yesterday that Trainer Mike Chambers was extremely hopeful of his return to form. He is working very hard around also, but will not be known until Friday whether he will be ready for use.

The recuperation of Wilcox will add greatly to Tech's chances, since he and Bob Warner had been doing most of the work at right guard lately.

With Warner and Wilcox both out, Coach Alexander would have only one veteran guard, Co-Captain Eddie Laws, for that position. In view of Florida's strong line play, Tech will need all the strength available at the two guard positions.

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Frank Carideo

Athens—Greece and Georgia. Athens once knew Pericles, Plato—yes, and Aristotle; Athens cherished old Socrates. Ere he hit the fatal bottle; Yale would rather tackle these In the clash of Bulldog brothers, Than some with names like Grants and Keys, Champions—and a lot of others.

Athens once held all the brains, Sculptors, poets—in their glory—Where the marathonic plains Gave the world an epic story; Yale would rather tackle these From this ancient Grecian juncture, Than a flock of blocking backs, And a line that's hard to puncture.

Athens, Greece, spurned bud and duffer; Athens, Georgia, 's even rougher.

Rival Bulldogs.
Harry Mehre, the football mentor working under the rippling rolls of Red and Black, makes no secret of the fact that he and his Georgia Bulldogs would esteem it much to have a rematch with the Yale team.

The Georgia Bulldogs have already accomplished three-fourths of this inspiring ambition. And they have a pretty good football team headed north to carry out the remainder of the assignment, known as Georgia's four-year plan.

Yale, however, has had the idea that if it could meet Georgia in a November game the result would be quite different. It has been Yale's feeling that Georgia was a bit more ready for football in October than Yale was, although the records show that each school had about the same amount of preliminary practice.

At any rate, Yale gets her November chance against a Georgia team that has been one of the few to remain untied and unbeaten, unscarred and unspotted, unmarked and unhorsed this late in the season.

And with those three past defeats still festering in the Blue system, you can gamble that Yale will shoot the entire works this Saturday to stop the southern march.

It was all right, from the Connecticut angle, for Sherman to march through Georgia, but it hasn't been so pleasant for Georgia to keep on marching through New Haven.

The Eli Outlook.
What chance has Yale to stop this next Georgia assault? It might be said in advance that it will take a much better Yale team than the season has shown so far.

The Yale team that faced Brown, Army and Dartmouth, or its equivalent on attack and defense, won't be good enough to interpose any wrecking barricade.

But there are still more possibilities in this Blue squad than the campaign so far has developed, and if it happens to find some way of tightening up its defense, Georgia's unbeaten team will need all it has to win.

One of the most interesting members of Georgia's team is a rather slender young fellow by the name of Homer Key. Key weighs somewhere between 145 and 150, but in addition to being always a ball-carrying and a passing threat, he is one of Georgia's leading defensive stars.

You don't often see a back as light as this who is much better than the average in defensive skill—a sure, heady tackler who rarely ever lets his man get away.

In one Georgia game Key made five hard tackles in a row, and all five saved Georgia impending trouble.

Then there is Grant, another star back, and big 200-pound Chapman, who can step into it with plenty of vigor.

In Lassiter, Whitehead, Curtin and others, the Blue also carries a first-class attack, but so far the Blue has shown no such steady-state performance as Georgia has displayed most of the year.

Yet Tulane and Mercer both gave the Georgia defense all the pounding heavy throbs any team can carry in an afternoon.

This has been a season to prove there are no super-teams. Most of the good ones have been beaten—and most of the unbeaten have been scared into a pale green state at least once—including Michigan, Southern California and Princeton.

Tulane Looks to '34 As Banner Grid Year
Ted Cox's Young Club Scored Major Upset; Most Players Return.

By Jimmy Jones.
The word is wafted in from picturesque New Orleans that Coach Ted Cox's surprising Tulane football team received a rip-roaring welcome from the east and the great 7-0 victory over unbeaten Colgate.

The fact that it was Colgate's first loss since the 1932 season and that Coach Andy Kerr of the vanquished team referred to Little Preacher Roberts, little Monk Simons and Bucky Bryan as antelopes in disguise, was all very pleasing to the New Orleans folks.

The Tulane team has been an in-and-out aggregation this year, but it has had its brilliant moments. As Coach Ted Cox said, "It is a left-handed ball club of which anything might be expected."

And the 7-0 victory over Colgate might be classed not only with the unexpected, but with the brilliant feats of last Saturday.

REDEEM THEMSELVES.
That triumph took away a lot of the sting of earlier defeats at the hands of Texas A. & M., Georgia and Auburn. The fact that a southern team had won against a northern team at that, was responsible for the downfall of one of the east's unbeaten powers, reflected a lot of credit upon the erratic freshmen.

And New Orleans, a city quick to pay tribute, was very happy about it all. They also were happy in the 7-0 victory over Colgate, despite the fact that the Jackets had the edge in ground gained and first downs.

"Little Preacher" Roberts, who has had his brilliant moments, has had his brilliant moments. As Coach Ted Cox said, "It is a left-handed ball club of which anything might be expected."

And the 7-0 victory over Colgate might be classed not only with the unexpected, but with the brilliant feats of last Saturday.

MARIST OPENS HEAVY WEEK AT BALL PARK

Meets Typists Tonight; Title Games Scheduled For Top Teams.

By Roy White.
Marist College plays Commercial High at 7:45 o'clock tonight at Ponce de Leon park in the first of two games this week for Marist. The Ivy Street team plays Benedictine Saturday afternoon, at Savannah, in its second game of the week. It is the first of a series of important prep games this week, which will go a long way toward deciding championships in two leagues here. The game also marks Marist's homecoming night.

Marist tonight has a chance to gain first claim on the North Georgia intercollegiate conference championship. The Cadets are undefeated except for a game with Boys' High and had victories over R. E. Lee, "Thomaston," North Fulton, and Gainesville, the team which defeated Decatur. Only a tie with Russell mars the Commercial record.

H. S. VS. MONROE.
Tech High and Monroe play Friday night at Ponce de Leon park in an important game in the northern division of the G. I. A. A. Monroe was beaten by Boys' High but a victory Friday will definitely establish their claim to championship recognition.

Boys' High meets Lanier in Macon, Saturday afternoon, in another of the "championship" games for G. I. A. A. and state honors. G. M. A. plays Columbus High, Friday afternoon, at College Park.

Decatur High plays LaGrange Friday night in Decatur. Russell faces Gainesville there for second place in the N. G. I. C. Druid Hills plays at Marietta, and North Fulton meets Athens, Friday afternoon, in Athens in other prep games.

Commercial re-entered football competition this year after an absence of a year and has made good progress. Rufus Godwin has worked hard with a green squad and the boys are showing improvement.

The typists gave Russell high one of its hardest games and that was early in the season. Commercial will be no set-up for Marist tonight.

MONROE IMPROVED.
Red Barron has one of the most improved prep teams in the state to start against Tech High Friday night. Two injured players who were held out of the Boys' High game have returned to the Monroe lineup to give the team added weight and power.

Barron stated that his starting selection will not be made until shortly before the game as every player, including the reserves, are ready to go.

Extensive preparations are being made in Macon for the Boys' High-Lanier High Armistice Day game Saturday. Mercer plays in Chattahoochee, leaving the way clear for the prep game, which will be played in the Mercer stadium.

Officials of the Central of Georgia railroad announced Tuesday that a special will be operated between Atlanta and Macon for the prep game. The special will leave Atlanta at 7:25 o'clock Saturday morning and will leave Macon at 8 o'clock, Atlanta time, returning Saturday night.

An unusually low round trip reduced rate has been authorized for the special.

Maxey Considers Joe Knight Fight
NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Maxey Rosenbloom, world's light-heavyweight boxing champion, is considering an offer to meet Joe Knight, Georgia southpaw challenger, in a title bout at West Palm Beach, Fla., during the winter season.

According to the champion's manager, $10,000 has been offered as a guarantee for Rosenbloom to accept the match in February, together with the option of selecting a New York referee.

Knight, who is 24 years old and was born in Cairo, Ga., has piled up an impressive record among the light-heavyweights. He gained a decision in a non-title bout with Rosenbloom at Daytona Beach, Fla., in 1932.

Florida To Guard Against Horse Dope
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Nov. 7.—(AP)—The Florida racing commission will spare no expense to prevent "doping" of horses or dogs which run at "ante" tracks this season.

The practice, according to the federal narcotic department, never gained widespread practice in Florida, and the commission, at a meeting here, ordered every precaution taken to prevent it from gaining foothold in Florida.

The commission made personnel assignments for the tracks at St. Petersburg, Tampa and Clay county (near Jacksonville), and announced such appointments for Miami, Orlando and West Palm Beach would be made later.

WOOD'S CAMP, La. Flore County, Okla., Nov. 7.—(AP)—A thousand redcoats, on Oklahoma's first legal deer hunt in 11 years, began the slow-motion hunt of the Kaimich and winding stair mountains today.

The hunters, seeking the lawful limit of one buck each for the first day, not only wore the scarlet coats and caps by edict of the state game department to avoid being shot, but were under strict warning to leave before they fired lest they shoot a civilian conservation corps worker.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 7.—(AP) Big Ed Krause, regarded as a certain unanimous choice for the captaincy of Notre Dame's 1933 football team until it was decided to appoint different captains for each game, will lead the downcast Ramblers against Purdue Saturday.

Krause, rated as one of the greatest tackles in college football, was named captain for the day by Coach Hearty "Eugene" Anderson yesterday. FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD
 Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I am wretched and miserable because of my unfortunate disposition. I am sensitive and easily hurt by my friends and I do not forget these hurts quickly. Then too I am violently jealous and if there is any joy in life for a jealous person I haven't found it. Can't you help an unhappy girl?
 Answer: Shakespeare called jealousy a "green-eyed monster" that mocked the meat it fed on and Solomon commented that it was as "cerel as the grave." Dostoyevski said jealousy was an incurable disease of the mind. Not much hope in these pronouncements unless they are considered in the light of science. A man may have an incurable heart disease and with reasonable care and medication live an almost normal life. He may always be conscious that he has a partially incapacitated motor, yet get about, do the things that other people do and enjoy life as it comes. How does he accomplish this? By self-control. Nobody can help that man to take care of his heart. He must do it himself. Likewise the person conscious of having a jealous nature, one that poisons the pleasure in friendly contacts, must exert self-control and refuse to give expression to the jealousy.

The hurts that friends administer are generally unintentional. The least we can do is to give them the benefit of the doubt when such occasions arise. But if we are always thinking of ourselves and our tender feelings we cannot be so magnanimous. The cure for sensitiveness is the cultivation of an unselfish attitude. If this is not a specific in every instance it is at least a palliative, and certainly would reform him. On the contrary, friends enables us to forgive them when they hurt us.
 CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I knew my husband drank before I married him, but like every other foolish young girl, I thought love and marriage would reform him. On the contrary, he is getting worse all the time. He is so abusive to me when he is drinking that I am forced to go to his mother and father for protection. The Answer: Nobody can fight a good battle in the dark. Nobody can enjoy the companionship of a friend when there is a nameless and unexplained barrier building up between them. Complete frankness between friends of the opposite sex is generally a good plan to follow. Ask the girl to tell you what it is that stands between you and complete understanding such as you once had. Be prepared to read between her lines, for the likelihood is that she is nettled at your failure to make known your intentions toward her. If you love her, tell her that you do, and if you don't, give her the opportunity to cut loose and look for a boy-friend who has something more than friendship in mind.

 CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Per Capita Circulation Lower for October

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—(AP)—Money in circulation on October 31 totaled $5,655,163,442, equivalent to $4.73 for every man, woman and child in the United States. The treasury said today this represented a per capita decrease of 14 cents for the month, and a decrease of 25 cents as compared with the corresponding date last year. The statement showed there was $557,210,070 in gold and gold certificates still outstanding, despite the government's efforts to segregate this form of currency in the treasury and in the federal reserve banks. The gold circulation, however, had declined by approximately $633,090,000 from the amount outstanding on February 28.

RESTAURANT HEADS

HIT NRA "CHISELERS"
 INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—(AP)—The executive committee of the Indiana State Restaurant Association will recommend that 1,275 members of the association voluntarily remove from display the Blue Eagle of NRA co-operation "until a code of fair competition is adopted for the industry and is established on an enforceable basis." The committee, acting at a meeting here last night, said its recommendation will be placed before country vice presidents of the association at a conference here Friday.
 W. S. Akin, executive secretary, said reasons for the recommendation were: Failure of NRA to take adequate measures to prevent "chiselers," inability of restaurant operators to cope with mounting food and labor costs and prices cutting by "chiselers," and refusal of NRA officials to permit operation temporarily under the proposed national restaurant code, which provides a uniform "mark-up" on food prices.

BRYAN'S KINSWOMAN

IS GRANTED DIVORCE
 MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 7.—(UP)—Mrs. Kitty Owen Meeker, daughter of Ruth Bryan Owen, the United States minister to Denmark, and a granddaughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, was granted a divorce here today from William P. Meeker. The decree came in less than 24 hours after Mrs. Meeker had filed the petition seeking a divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

NANCY PAGE

Good Taste Never Allows Elaborate Effects
 BY FLORENCE LA GANKE

Marjorie was entertaining the good taste girls. She had not been a member for more than three weeks. Not having been at many meetings she was not familiar with the customs of the club. When refreshments were served they were of the simplest, possibly something hot to drink, like mulled cider, and ginger cookies. Or apples and popcorn balls, or creamed ginger ale and slices of pound cake.
 She had the biggest ideas and went to her mother with them. "Let's have a fruit salad and some fancy sandwiches and then we'll have ice cream and cake and coffee. Do you suppose I ought to have salad nuts and candies too. And we must give an order for the florist so I'll have a beautiful centerpiece and don't you think we ought to get a new lunch cloth. I wish we had new curtains in my room they are so shabby."
 Marjorie's mother was against. What kind of a club was this that her daughter had joined? She herself had known Nancy for a long time so she called her. "Mersey, no!" came Nancy's voice. "That isn't the idea at all. The good taste girls do the simplest things. They preach the doctrine all the time. Simple clothes, simple foods, simple decorations in rooms and on tables are always in good taste. Fussy elaborate affairs are not."

her that you do, and if you don't, give her the opportunity to cut loose and look for a boy-friend who has something more than friendship in mind.
